We must wait a while longer before we learn from British Columbia's slim grey number - one park ranger whether a mining town will presently blossom in already-nibbled Strathcona.

Speculation insists that such a town is on the planning boards, and my own guess is that it will not only materialize but be flourishing and perhaps expanding long after the Strathcona ones are stripped from what were once the people's acres.

I do not propose to dwell on the Strathcona passage with which Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kierman concluded his Tuesday reply to the budget speech.

Two points raised by Mr. Kierman are, however, puzzling me.

If houses that stand in the route of a planned highway can be expropriated by government, why could not the same policy be applied to a scattering of miners' claims allowed by deed of a shortsighted government 50 years ago?

And how-in fact, how in all hedges-do we, as parksmen Kierman suggests, "preserve the aesthetics" of Strathcona now?

This, of course, is balderdash, although Strathcona's mountains will still stand, and perhaps some of her first-growth timber; and a Buttle Lake slightly polluted by mine tailings will continue to sparkle in the sun.

Except for Dewdney NDP Dave Barrett's bitter cross-floor charge that: "You've given away 50 per cent of Strathcona Park, Mr. Minister!" Mr. Kierman's words brought scant dissent.

That may come when the House at a later point debates the bill proposing a parks act, which we have sorely lacked for many a year.

Still, fair is fair, and to this brother of the trees must go credit for our most graceful flourish to date. This was directed toward Highways Minister Gaglardi.

Declared smiling Ken Kierman, after announcing the unfeasibility of a Garibaldi-Lillooet River road link:

"I would not say it's impossible for our little Roman to build a road there . . . If you gave him the money, by golly, he'd build a road to the moon!"

And, I don't doubt, scatter "Sorry for the inconvenience" signs along the way.

Deputy Speaker William Spearre for Cariboo shared the afternoon with the minister, and in between were sandwiched two excellent country members from each side of the House.

One was NDP Frank Calder, plugging doggedly for his enormous wilderness riding of Atlin.

Salmon Arm Socred Willis Jefcoat was the other. Mr. Jefcoat proposed a pay-by-the-week fishing licence for out-of-province anglers—to my mind the most sensible suggestion of the day.

Charmer of the legislative evening was Waldo Skillings, SC for Victoria, who, before laughter prompted a correction to Swartz Bay, urged construction of a four-lane highway between Victoria and Tsawwassen.

A feat which would tax even the little Roman, by golly!

31 U.S. Troops Feared Dead In New Raid by Viet Cong

U.S., Soviet Both Outwitted?

CHINA TIGER GETTING FOXY

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — The impression is growing in informed British quarters that China, with the help of North Viet Nam, may have outwitted the untried leaders of both the Soviet Union and the United States in the spreading Vietnamese war.

The prospects may be exactly what Peking ordered: a shattering of hope for any friendly East-West conference that may have been in the making and a break-up in any budding friendship that could have developed between the two strangers—Alexei Kosygin of the Soviet Union and Lyndon Johnson of the United States.

For weeks there had been talk of a possible exchange of visits and television appearances by the two leaders. Both are relatively new and untried in the field of world strategy and diplomacy. Both have hard jobs in stepping out of the shadow of their predecessors, especially Kosygin, who replaces the formidable Nikita Khrushchev.

Now, suddenly, the Vietnamese war has enshrouded both leaders in images perhaps not of their own choosing. Each must show his people at home he is fearless. They cannot withdraw from the increasing rigidity of their predicaments without loss of face. It is now widely accepted in Western diplomatic quarters the timing of the Viet Cong attack against an American air base at Pleiku in South Viet Nam was deliberate. It coincided with the first visit of Kosygin in Hanoi, a city which his predecessor had intended to ignore.

Western diplomats suggest Kosygin was no more aware of plans for that attack than were the American airmen who were gunned down at Pleiku. Continued on Page 2

'Unfair Jailing Concern Forced Rivard Moves'

OTTAWA (CP) — André Letendre, executive assistant to Justice Minister Favreau, told the Dorion judicial inquiry today he sought information in the Rivard narcotics case because he didn't want Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to get up in the Commons and say a man had been imprisoned unjustly.

He said that at that time last August — a great many charges were being made that the justice department was keeping innocent persons in prison.

Counsel Yves Fortier asked why Mr. Letendre wasn't put on his guard when told that Lucien Rivard had previously been involved in the narcotics traffic. Mr. Letendre just shrugged.

Counsel Yves Fortier asked why Mr. Letendre wasn't put on his guard when told that Lucien Rivard had previously been involved in the narcotics traffic. Mr. Letendre just shrugged.

He went to the RCMP Aug. 11 with his allegations after receiving telephone calls about the Rivard case from Mr. Letendre, Liberal MP Guy Rouleau and Guy Lord, then special assistant to Mr. Favreau.

Mr. Letendre said he learned from Mr. Lamontagne that Rivard was involved in an international narcotics network.

Ross Drouin, Conservative party counsel, quoted Mr. Letendre's statement to the RCMP Aug. 19 that he (Letendre) didn't think his questioning that day by the RCMP concerned a serious matter.

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion asked whether Mr. Letendre didn't think it was serious when the RCMP started questioning the executive assistant to a cabinet minister.

Mr. Letendre said he had been told by Mr. Favreau that he would be questioned by the RCMP but the minister hadn't told him why.

Mr. Letendre said he was uneasy because he thought he might have lost a secret document or said something he shouldn't have. When the matter turned out to be his tele-

TALKS URGED BY DE GAULLE

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle today sounded a new call for negotiations with neutral Viet Nam and the rest of Southeast Asia.

De Gaulle's appeal for talks declared that the strife cannot be settled by weapons. He said there must rather be negotiations with the aim of cutting off all foreign influence. De Gaulle's statement did not single out the United States or any other country.

Barracks Bomb Takes High Toll

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist Viet Cong terrorists destroyed a U.S. army billet tonight in Qui Nhon, 275 miles northeast of Saigon.

It was feared as many as 31 Americans were killed.

A U.S. military spokesman said one American was known dead, 14 wounded and 30 missing. He said the four-story building was "entirely destroyed" by the explosives placed by terrorists who penetrated stepped up security.

The building normally houses 57 Americans and 45 were believed asleep in it at the time.

The attack coincided with reports of renewed fighting over vast areas of South Viet Nam and a major government disaster in Binh Dinh province 300 miles north of Saigon.

450 CASUALTIES

A series of Communist attacks wiped out three government companies—some 450 men killed, wounded or missing. A spokesman called it the worst defeat of the war so far.

In other attacks two more American fliers were reported killed. One died when his helicopter was shot down 30 miles east of Saigon. Another died of wounds suffered Monday in a battle some 200 miles north of Saigon.

The attack on the billet at Qui Nhon came at 8 p.m. A spokesman said the mangled bodies of two Viet Cong were found nearby with demolition equipment. They apparently were killed by their own bombs.

The attacks came after the "National Liberation Front," the political arm of the Viet Cong, called for stepped up attacks on Americans to offset the retaliatory bombing raids on the North Viet Nam.

Mr. McKenzie said he plans to file notice of appeal in the Jones case before the time runs out Feb. 14 and has not made up his mind which of several courses available he will take in reviving the Hinkinson case.

Mr. Jones, suspended provincial purchasing commission chairman, was acquitted Jan. 15 of charges of accepting benefits. Mr. Hinkinson's preliminary hearing on charges of giving the benefits ended in a dismissed Tuesday.

The crown is not satisfied to let matters rest as they are and it is particularly dissatisfied with the legal rulings relating to the status of Jones," Mr. McKenzie said after reviewing the situation this morning with officials of the attorney-general's department.

Mr. Jones was found not to be a government official within the criminal code definition under which the charges were laid.

Mr. McKenzie said he had to appeal the Jones case to "preserve what rights the crown may have." But in the Hinkinson case, he can make several applications aimed at ordering a trial as well as a straight appeal from the magistrate's decision that the Jones' decision washed out any need for ordering a trial.

There was speculation in diplomatic quarters that U.S. retaliatory action would be taken. Belief of this was based on the fact that the latest incident appeared from first reports to have taken a greater toll of lives than the attack on Pleiku last Saturday.

ROXANN
... no help

Slashed Girl Flees Nightmare

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pretty Roxann Grebe said a would-be rapist held a beer-can opener to her throat as she drove her small car on a wild ride through Los Angeles suburbs.

"Each time a car pulled up next to us, I'd scream and he'd cut me again with the opener," the 18-year-old high school senior said. "The people in the other car would just stare and drive on."

"Several times I'd manage to get part way out the door. I cried out for help, and he dragged me back inside each time. People watched — and turned away."

She pulled open the top of her house coat slightly to show long scratches on her throat and upper chest.

A dark-eyed blonde, Roxann works part time as a saleswoman in a store near the Cordon home. She gave a reporter this account of her experience:

She got off work Monday night and was getting into her small car.

Suddenly a dark-complexioned man jumped into the car with her, thrust the opener against her throat and said, "Don't scream — you're going with me."

As they drove he bent over as if to pick up something. She slammed on the brakes, ran to a nearby phone booth and called her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Grebe.

Mrs. Grebe said Roxann's hysterical voice poured out the story. Then, she said:

"All of a sudden I heard her cry out, 'Oh, no!' then all I could hear was the sound of the receiver banging against the side of the booth."

The girl said her assailant dragged her back to the car and forced her to drive again.

In Glendora the attacker took the wheel and drove to an isolated area in the foothills to the north, halted the car and tried to attack her.

She fought back, finally shoved away the hand with the opener and raced for a house.

Never Met Stonehill —Bennett

Premier Bennett today was to be asked in the legislature if he ever met Harry Stonehill in a Pacific Great Eastern Railway private car he uses as rail way president or ever loaned the use of the car to him.

Mr. Bennett already has told a reporter outside the House that he has never met Mr. Stonehill but the written question has been put on the order paper in the legislature.

Mr. Stonehill is the principal in a controversial immigration application case that involves the "mystery letter" sent on the premier's stationery and over his signature. The premier has declared it phoney.

The question was put by Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby).

phone call to Mr. Lamontagne, he had relaxed.

Mr. Drouin said Mr. Letendre must have known how serious the matter was. He had described Mr. Favreau as being "pale and wan," and Mr. Lord had told him the Rivard case involved narcotics and that it would be dangerous to release Rivard on bail.

Mr. Letendre said later he wasn't surprised that Mr. Rouleau had approached him and Mr. Lord about the Rivard case. Requests were received every day from MPs concerning justic department cases.

Andre Villeneuve, counsel for Mr. Rouleau, asked whether MPs take steps in criminal cases.

CHARGES DELAYED

Mr. Letendre said yes. He recalled that Mr. Favreau had delayed laying charges in one case at the request of Erik Nielsen (P.C.-Yukon) so that the latter would have time to make representations first.

Mr. Drouin described this cross-examination as "repulsive."

Chief Justice Dorion told Mr. Letendre to stop giving more information than was sought.

Mr. Nielsen on Nov. 23 brought the Lamontagne charges to public attention in the Commons and named Mr. Letendre.

In earlier testimony today, Mr. Letendre, 35, said he was told in August by Mr. Lord that Rivard was reported to have bank accounts in Mexico and Switzerland and to have been ready to skip the country if granted bail in Montreal.

Mr. Letendre, taking the witness stand for the first time, said he was told Aug. 11 by Mr. Lamontagne, acting for the U.S. government in the case, that arrests had been synchronized around the world in a crackdown on an international network of which Rivard was a part.

Arrests had been made, for example, in Boston, Marseilles, and the Far East.

Mr. Letendre also gave testimony to the effect that Rivard had been involved previously in the narcotics traffic, but had stayed away from it for three years.

He said Liberal MP Guy Rouleau told him Mrs. Rivard had given this information to his brother, Raymond Rouleau.

Pediatrician Hiring Unnecessary - Doctor

Hiring a pediatrician for Metro Health staff is unnecessary, new health board member Dr. Harold Carter said Tuesday.

Making his first appearance as a delegate from Oak Bay, Dr. Carter said private practising pediatricians haven't enough work in their specialty to keep them busy.

"I just don't see the necessity for it. Seeing that Victoria has more pediatricians than they need and that most have to do other things to keep busy, it seems odd that another is needed in Victoria," Dr. Carter told the board.

The appointment is being made to replace Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffey, a public health specialist who retired last year.

DECISION MADE

The board's decision had already been made when Dr. Carter brought it up. Advertisements have been placed in domestic and overseas journals offering the post at a salary range of $12,505 to $13,920.

Dr. Carter questioned the philosophy behind the board's he added.

Early Planning Aids Planting in Spring

By HILDA BEASTALL

A new garden plot which received the initial cleaning and digging last fall will be in condition for some permanent planting early this spring.

The exact time will depend on the weather and the texture of the soil. It may be as early as March or as late as April.

Planning however, can be done now, and few suggestions of permanent plants to give quick effects may come in useful.

These will not all be fast growing, but their characteristics whether of flower, foliage or fruit will be produced while they are still in their young stages.

This may be considered important since the enthusiasm and interest of a gardener is often dependent on the immediate results observed.

Trees for an average garden may be chosen from birch, Mountain-ash, Japanese-maple, flowering crab, cherry or plum. All these are leaf-losing deciduous that he was subjected to Liberal political pressures to agree to bail for Rivard.

He went to the RCMP with his allegations Aug. 11, the day he received telephone calls from Guy Poulet, then parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson, and from Mr. Letendre.

Mr. Letendre said Mr. Rouleau spoke to him about the Rivard case Aug. 11.

He quoted Mr. Rouleau as saying he wanted to discuss the possibility of bail for Rivard but needed information on the case first.

Mr. Letendre said Mr. Rouleau mentioned Rivard had been of service to Raymond Rouleau in electoral campaigns.

He said he then spoke about the matter to Mr. Lord who had been approached by Mr. Rouleau. It was at this point that Mr. Lord had told him of Rivard's foreign bank accounts and of the danger that Rivard would escape if granted bail.

Mr. Letendre said he phoned Mr. Lamontagne because at that time there were charges of persons being illegally detained.

SEE POLITICAL PRESSURE

The witness said there was political pressure on the government as well as arising from the dismissal of the navy of Gordon Knott because of misappropriation by the RCMP security branch.

He told Mr. Lamontagne that Mr. Favreau's office had received representations on behalf of Rivard.

Mr. Letendre quoted Mr. Lamontagne as saying that Robert Kennedy, then U.S. attorney-general, was following the narcotics closely and that he knew Mr. Favreau would not interfere with the judge hearing Rivard's extradition case.

The witness said Mr. Favreau met Bob Kennedy in Toronto in April.

"We called him Bob like we called the president Jack," Mr. Letendre said.

Mr. Letendre testified that in a telephone conversation with Mr. Lamontagne the Montreal lawyer told him Mr. Favreau was not the kind of person to interfere in matters which did not concern him.

He (Mr. Letendre) told Mr. Lamontagne of a meeting between Mr. Favreau and the U.S. attorney-general last April and said the two ministers would co-operate on matters of common interest.

He also had told Mr. Lamontagne he would be visiting Washington after the Atlantic City convention of the Democratic party.

Ho Chi Minh, the North Vietnamese leader, would have the audacity of involving Kosygin without full consultations and urging from Peking.

With his own world image at stake, Johnson apparently felt he had no other recourse but to batter a North Vietnamese base. He was fighting a losing war: A war which he had inherited and one which he could not resolve without first reaching firm and intimate negotiations with the other side.

Now those prospects of detached and cool-headed negotiations have dimmed; Kosygin, finding himself involved, immediately pledged firm aid to Hanoi. The demonstrations that followed in the Communist capitals were anticipated. But they seemed more fervent and prolonged in Peking than in Moscow.

Johnson cannot let the matter rest. He has made his own position clear. It appears to suggest further military responses against North Vietnamese bases as the South Vietnamese situation continues to deteriorate. And Communist China appears to be waiting for just the right moment to join the holocaust in full array.

Dorion Probe Key Question: Who to Trust

OTTAWA (CP)—Who is to be believed in testifying to the Dorion inquiry into attempted bribery charges?

Two lawyers proposed a test Tuesday for the credibility of key witness Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, who is accused of offering a $20,000 bribe to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne. Mr. Denis has denied the accusation.

The test would involve questioning Denis and possibly others, including Prime Minister Pearson's speech writer, about the immigration case of American millionaire Harry Stonehill.

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion reserved decision on the pleas of Ross Drouin, Conservative party counsel, and Yves Fortier, counsel for Mr. Lamontagne, that Denis be examined about the Stonehill case.

Mr. Drouin said he wants to ask Denis whether requests were made for money at meetings last April and July among Stonehill, Vancouver publicity man Al Williamson, Hal Dornan, the prime minister's speech-writer, and Denis about Stonehill's bid to stay in Canada.

Labor Wins U.K. Vote On Planes

LONDON (AP)—The Labor government has narrowly survived a Conservative challenge to its decision to step up purchase of U.S. planes for the RAF.

Prime Minister Wilson's government Tuesday night beat back a Conservative attempt to unseat it, but by only five votes, 306 to 301, as the Liberals added their nine votes to the Conservative censure motion.

In answer to opposition charges, Aviation Minister Roy Jenkins said, "whether we like it or not, the all-British plane is out." He then included all advance weapons systems as beyond British independent production.

"We are at the end of the road so far as the exclusive British manufacture of complicated weapons systems for an exclusive British market is concerned," Jenkins said.

Jenkins announced a program of collaboration with the United States and Britain's European allies.

He said the program has been developed with British government funds.

STUDIES STARTED

Jenkins disclosed that Britain and the U.S. are studying joint development in anti-submarine warfare, tactical air defence missiles, army ordnance and army communications.

As announced in Washington, the United States will supply Britain with 1,600-mile-an-hour Phantom F-4 jet fighters and C-130E transports.

Britain and the U.S. also are to combine in development of an advanced lift-jet engine for vertical and short takeoff aircraft.

In their censure motion, the Conservatives charged that Labor policies were leading to almost total dependence on the United States and shattering confidence in the British aviation industry.

The five-vote margin was Labor's smallest since it came to power last October. Last Tuesday, they beat back a Conservative censure motion by 17 votes when the nine Liberals abstained.

During the bitter debate, thousands of aircraft workers fearful of losing their jobs, marched outside Parliament. They carried banners reading, "Keep the RAF British."

ASKS CHANGE

Young Tory Chief Hits Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Joe Clark, president of the Progressive Conservative party's student federation, says the party needs a new leader because of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's stand in the flag debate and his opposition to changes in Quebec.

Mr. Fortier, backing Mr. Drouin's demand that the commission test Denis' credibility by examining him on the Stonehill case, called for Mr. Dornan, Mr. Williamson and Stonehill also to be summoned to testify.

Prime Minister Pearson has said Mr. Dornan acted with "perfect propriety" in introducing Denis to Stonehill and Williamson.

SHOULD BE ASKED

Mr. Fortier said Denis should be asked about reports that he said "How much is in it for me for us?" in discussing the Stonehill case.

He said the latter question referred to the Liberal campaign fund. He argued that the commission should try to find out whether there was a "pattern" to Denis' actions as executive assistant to Mr. Tremblay.

"It is important to know whether Denis was in the habit of doing this," Mr. Fortier said.

Mr. Drouin said Stonehill, who has been expelled from Canada, appeared on a television program recently, spoke of $25,000 or $50,000 and said he had seen Senator Gelinis.

A transcript of the CBC interview contains no mention by Mr. Stonehill of any amount of money in the context of his reference to Senator Gelinis.

SHOWS REPLY

(The transcript shows that when the interviewer asked him if he had met Senator Gelinis, Mr. Stonehill replied:

"Er . . . yes, I met him. Through a mutual friend on another occasion, and I must say that in fairness to Senator Gelinis he never inferred anything improper. I merely explained to him that I wanted to become a resident of Canada, and I asked if there was anything that he could do in my behalf, to hasten action on this. And Mr. Gelinis said that he would look into the matter, and to best of my knowledge, he's never—I don't know what happened about it. He's never approached me, he's never called me, he never said anything."

Mr. Drouin and Mr. Fortier both argued that the commission in fairness to Denis should take up these widely circulated reports on the Stonehill case.

RCMP counsel Norman Mathews opposed the application of Mr. Drouin, arguing the inquiry would lose sight of its main purpose—the bribery allegations in the Rivard case and the allegations in the Rivard case and the handling of RCMP reports of the investigation of them.

KILLS 30 IN TURKEY

Snow Hits S. Europe

ROME (AP)—Romans were digging out today from the worst blizzard in 15 years, while paralysing snowfalls and freezing temperatures brought misery to wide areas of Poland, Greece and Turkey.

The storm dumped 10 inches of snow on Rome in 16 hours. The snow turned to thin-deep slush today but with temperatures hovering around the freezing point, the Italian capital was still particularly immobilized.

Seven days of snowstorms and cold claimed 30 lives in Turkey.

Fourteen persons died in two avalanches in eastern Turkey, most of the other deaths occurred in the west. One of the avalanches buried a home occupied by eight persons.

Ankara's International Airport was closed until further notice.

In Greece, eight persons died in a two-day cold wave that sent temperatures tumbling in the northern part of the country. Heavy snowfalls blocked roads on the Bulgarian and Yugoslavia borders.

A Comfortable Cushion

THREE CAN BE LITTLE QUARREL with Premier Bennett's budget speech declaration that a "reasonable" and "adequate" revenue surplus is a good thing for British Columbia to have.

But there is room for honest differences of opinion as to just how large a financial cushion the government needs to meet the exigencies which could arise in future years. The different points of view will be particularly sharp this year if analyses of spending commitments for vital projects such as education show that greater progress could be made with more funds.

Mr. Bennett stated that by March 31 an estimated excess of revenues over expenditures for the year will result in $25 millions being added to the surplus account to restore it to the "more reasonable level" of $36,511,859. How did the account grow to this amount?

The fiscal year 1960-61 was the last year in which the government spent more than it took in and the difference was made up out of the surplus leaving the account with a total of $18,239,041. By the end of the following year the surplus had been built up to $28,720,995 and a year later to $40,627,957.

At this point, Mr. Bennett conceived the idea of using part of the surplus to remove tolls on bridges and roads—although this was a turnaround policy since these projects had been sold to the public as "self-liquidating" and not to be paid for out of the general revenues. Nevertheless, $15,439,867 was removed from the reserves for this purpose.

Even after this draining of the surplus account, however, it was back up to $29,261,109 at March 31, 1964, and another commitment under the Toll Removal Act of $17,749,250 was made. Now, a year later, with a further surplus of $25 millions in hand the account holds about $36.5 millions.

If the premier had not used funds from general revenues to pay off part of his contingent debt, the surplus account would now stand at $69.7 millions, an increase of $51.5 millions over a three-year period, or an average rise of $17.1 millions a year.

With surplus revenue coming in at this rate the government will find it exceedingly difficult to make a poor mouth when it is suggested that more could be done in the investment of social capital—for educational plant, for instance, or institutional construction to meet the needs of the physically and mentally ill, and for other urgent purposes.

Mr. Lysenko Out Again

RUSSIAN SCIENCE, WIDELY admired when it is not distorted by improper political influences, has caught up with Prof. Trofim Lysenko.

The controversial figure, who contended that heredity could be changed artificially, has been relieved as head of the Institute of Genetics and many of his theories have been quietly abandoned.

This marks an important change of direction for the science of genetics in the Soviet Union. At one time, under Stalin, distinguished opponents of Prof. Lysenko were arrested and shipped to concentration camps. Now they are vindicated in part by the praise extended to the late Nikolai Vavilov, one of the victims of this brutal treatment.

After Stalin, Mr. Lysenko fell into obscurity for a period but was reinstated by Mr. Khrushchev.

Now, with Mr. Khrushchev a "non-person," the protege falls from grace again—accused of hampering Russian agriculture by rejecting hybrid grains that did not fit in with his theories.

Significantly, those who have been instrumental in ousting Lysenko from his eminence have added a charitable tone to their censure. They have suggested that all Prof. Lysenko's accomplishments should not be rejected, that some of his work was good.

But they have also taken a stand against the practice of Stalin's one-time protege who removed good scientists from their jobs, curtailed useful investigation and restricted major achievements because they ran counter to his theories.

In Russian genetics, the scientific principle of open, even if controversial, inquiry and investigation is apparently to be permitted again.

A Fireworks Ban

EACH YEAR AT HALLOWEEN, thousands of youngsters touch off firecrackers, often in defiance of local ordinances and frequently with little regard to safety.

At the end of October the newspapers customarily carry items covering some of the mishaps which occur through this practice—children whose sight has been endangered or destroyed by a needless explosion, fires which have been started by smoldering wrappers, cars that have gone out of control when a firecracker tossed through a window has distracted a driver.

These are incidents that take place at the end of October. Mrs. Lois Hagen brings them to mind now by reintroducing her earlier bill to ban fireworks except for public displays. She has behind her the support of a large number of people, not all vocal, who are aware of the injury and damage caused by these explosives, small though they may be.

Because fireworks are improperly handled so frequently, her bill deserves thoughtful consideration by the legislature.

Uncheerful Conversation

THE ROYAL JUBILEE HOSPITAL board is once again considering imposition of parking charges on the hospital grounds. The public should be quick to discourage such a move.

People who go to hospitals, unless they are employed there or are patients, usually visit to add some cheer or comfort to those suffering ill health or injury. They do not go for their own entertainment or pleasure. Why they should be "climbed" for these gentle errands of compassion and affection will baffle many of them. They will not appreciate a petty annoyance.

The charge, no doubt, would be small. So, too, would be its imposition on members of a public which has shown unusual generosity in response to hospital appeals.

Mr. Frank Paulding

CITIZENS IN MANY WALKS of life have occasion today to look back with appreciation on the varied services performed for this community by the late Mr. Frank Paulding.

For years he directed affairs at the YMCA as general secretary. From that position he brought to a newborn Community Chest the techniques of fund raising which became standard practice for the United Appeal. In retirement he maintained enjoyment and continued interest in choral work with an organization of elderly citizens. And throughout his active career he furnished professional leadership to public speaking groups here.

He will be remembered warmly by a large number of Victorians for the help he extended to them.

No Rival and No Party Unity

AS Mr. Diefenbaker announced triumphantly on Saturday night, there is no vacancy in the Conservative leadership. Neither, on the evidence of last week's bizarre proceedings, is there much unity in the Conservative party. Not for the first time Mr. Diefenbaker demonstrated on Friday that he is a resourceful political tactician. His caucus manoeuvre, however, was in part an admission of weakness.

For what he sought and obtained, in advance of the main decision, was a verdict from a friendly jury.

It is a remarkable fact that about two-thirds of the Conservative MPs are members (or the direct successors of members) who first entered parliament in 1957-58, the year of the Diefenbaker earthquake. They are men for whom doors were opened miraculously (sometimes in constituency which had never known a Conservative member) by his leadership. Others, notably the senators, are indebted to him for positions or for preferences in the days of Conservative power. In general, and not surprisingly, these men are Mr. Diefenbaker's strongest supporters.

Moreover, Mr. Diefenbaker's public contention that his policies were caucus policies carried the obvious implication that an attack on the leader was an attack on the caucus itself.

Mr. Diefenbaker's own tactics are, therefore, an indication that he was not too sure of the balance of forces in the national executive where the challenge to his leadership had to be met. Nor, apparently, did he deem the endorsement of caucus sufficient to his need; his proposal for a policy advisory committee was perhaps an olive branch extended to those members of the executive who feel that Mr. Diefenbaker's own instincts have played too large a part in Conservative policy-making.

Outcome Not Clear

While the outcome of Saturday's meeting is by no means clear, the proceedings evidently took a turn which in the light of the 1964 annual meeting is distinctly ironical. It will be recalled that the rebels of a year ago demanded a secret ballot. The indignant reaction of loyalists was that Conservatives should stand up to be counted. In the face of Mr. Balcer's demand last week for a leadership convention (and a resolution which would also, it appears, have expressed lack of confidence in Mr. Diefenbaker), the executive found virtue in a secret ballot with secret questions to be secretly scrutinized by Mr. Diefenbaker and the executive. As absences are also to be polled, Saturday's meeting ended in an inconclusive fashion.

Pending the outcome, Mr. Balcer has yielded nothing. It was his threat to break with the party that precipitated the crisis. The threat continues to hang over the national executive. Without Mr. Balcer, and his close colleague, Mr. Martineau, it is difficult to see how the Conservatives could retain the semblance of a party in Quebec province.

All parties in the past have occasionally had their troubles with extremist dissidents. The present situation in the Conservative party is unusual because the men who have taken public positions against Mr. Diefenbaker are conspicuous as moderates. It was only when Mr. Balcer emerged as a foe of Quebec extremists that he attracted much attention outside Quebec province. Indeed, it was Mr. Diefenbaker who tried to make Mr. Balcer a symbol of Quebec moderation by hailing him extravagantly as new Sir Georges Etienne Cartier.

Mr. Martineau, representing a half English constituency, is also a moderate as his fine recent speech in Edmonton clearly testifies.

The same is true of the English-speaking dissident. None is noted for extreme views. Most of them are members who have emphasized, in their speeches, the need of finding new accommodations with French Canada.

Rebel Differences

There is one difference between the two rebel groups. The Quebec Conservatives obviously are driven by a sense of desperation, they do not see how, under Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership, they can hope to survive. This is not true of the leading insurgents from other provinces. For example, Mr. Fairweather represents Royal, which has yet to elect a Liberal. Mr. Harkness has been elected seven times in Calgary North, where he is very popular. Mr. Baldwin's riding of Peace River has no Conservative tradition but it has a railway for which the sitting member is given the political credit by both parties.

In the confrontation of Friday and Saturday, Mr. Diefenbaker had one clear advantage in his appeal to the undecided. He is the leader and is plainly determined to fight to the finish in defense of his leadership. In facing a party opposition, he faces no avowed rival.

Some Conservatives who desire a change are privately doubtful in these circumstances that a convention would change anything, although it certainly would advertise and harden the rift in an already divided party. Such calculations no doubt played a considerable part in the deliberations of the national executive.

The Unhappy Doctors

DR. ABRAHAM MARCUS, from London

BRITAIN'S family doctors are again on the verge of revolt against the National Health Service. This month the prescription charge of 2s (28 cents) per item prescribed was removed by the Labor Government against the advice and wishes of the majority of family doctors.

Up to last year the doctors were against the prescription charge because they believed it might prevent some poor people from seeking medical advice. But the doctors gradually have come to feel that they are overworked, as well as underpaid, and now they look on the prescription charge as a deterrent which will keep some patients away and limit their work.

These are incidents that take place at the end of October. Mrs. Lois Hagen brings them to mind now by reintroducing her earlier bill to ban fireworks except for public displays. She has behind her the support of a large number of people, not all vocal, who are aware of the injury and damage caused by these explosives, small though they may be.

Because fireworks are improperly handled so frequently, her bill deserves thoughtful consideration by the legislature.

too much. It was much too difficult and too slow a process to control prescribing by better education of doctors and patients. The easy way was to slap a charge on prescriptions.

Current Bill

Currently the drug bill for family doctor services runs at about £70 million ($210 million) annually. The prescription charges were bringing in about £24 million ($72 million). It is difficult to say whether the charges limited the gross expenditure on drugs. The first charge and subsequent increases were followed by a fall in the number of prescriptions.

In 1951, 227 million prescriptions were written; in 1952, the year of the first charge, the number fell to 216 million. But cost per prescription had risen from 3s. 8d. to 4s. 1d. The same pattern of events was repeated in 1956 and in 1962. Doctors prescribed larger quantities of drugs in order to mitigate the effects of the charge on patients.

Removal of the prescription charge was part of the policy on which Mr. Wilson fought the election. It was a matter of principle (but people still pay something for electric stockings, spectacles, false teeth and other dental services). Meanwhile the Health Service is costing £1,000 million ($3,000 million) a year and people are beginning to wonder where the money is to be got.

(London Observer Service)

For a scientific profession, so-called, the doctors have been indulging in an orgy of muddled thinking on this issue. If, as they contend, the prescription charge is a deterrent, they should be able to prove, if they want it maintained, that it deters only those who would otherwise come with frivolous and trivial complaints from reaching the doctor. The more reasonable argument is that the genuinely ill for whom, say 8s. ($1) for a prescription is an important consideration, are just as likely to forego a visit to the doctor must be accepted. On this issue the doctors have no case.

Yet it is significant that they should argue in publicly and face the criticism that they are willing to impose hardship on patients. Doctors in recent years seem to have become disenchanted with medicine under the National Health Service. A vocation has become a humdrum routine beset with frustrations.

The concept of a free Health Service enshrined in the great Act of Parliament of 1946 did not long remain unblemished. Three years later, one year after the Health Service came into existence, the Labor Government of the day passed an amending act sanctioning a prescription charge. Although it was not put into effect, Mr. Harold Wilson, the present Labor prime minister, and the late Mr. Aneurin Bevan, the principle architect of the Health Service, resigned from the government in protest.

Charge Imposed

It was left to a Conservative government in 1952 to take advantage of the new powers by imposing a charge of 1s. per prescription. At the same time another act passed by the Conservatives enabled them to charge for certain appliances. In 1956 the prescription charge became 1s. per item and in 1962 it was raised to 2s. per item.

These charges in reality were a weapon in the cold war between the Ministry of Health and the drug industry. Drugs in the Health Service cost

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

I hardly think I need to remind you that this is White Cane Week.

You've read of it in the newspapers and you may have heard W. A. Tymchuk, Vancouver Island representative of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, speak about it over the radio or on television.

Slogan is 'Let The White Cane Introduce Us.'

In simple words this means stop, speak and see if you can be of help to anyone carrying a white cane. It's a symbol that the one holding it is either blind or has very restricted vision.

There are people who have been carrying such canes for a long time. To others they are very new.

Each and all need helpful understanding. But it is the last named who need the most encouragement.

Loss of sight can be gradual or it can be sudden.

First thought of the afflicted one, after realization comes, is hatred of becoming dependent.

"It's the old conception of the blind beggar and the tin cup that is embedded deep in the subconscious," Mr. Tymchuk told me, when I called on him in his office at CNIB headquarters.

Blindness came to him in a matter of days, leaving less than a 10 degree field of vision.

From his own experience, he explained: "The simple things that everyone takes for granted become monumental. Not being able to read or to drive a car doesn't seem to be as bad as how to eat . . . who am I speaking to . . . where are my socks. Things like that."

Fright and frustration follow the first shock, especially among younger persons who are "just nicely settled in employment, only becoming established in life or perhaps buying a home."

Terrifying question is always — how am I going to live?

Here's where the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is equipped to help.

This is not as easy as it sounds for even when blindness, or almost total loss of vision, is inevitable, people cling to hope and therefore find it very difficult to take a step that seems final.

They put off contacting CNIB as long as they can.

"Doctors in Victoria are exceptionally cooperative," Mr. Tymchuk says. "They urge their patients to get in touch with us as quickly as possible. They even send us unsolicited reports to help prepare us for the ones who do indicate they will register."

As is the case with some new imports, earwigs increased rapidly in favorable localities and soon became garden pests because of their fondness for eating tender plants. As such rises in population are usually due to the fact that in a new country natural checks are lacking, entomologists introduced a parasitic fly during the years 1934 to 1939 and again at later dates. This insect, also from Europe originally, has now become established and is doing a good job although you may not feel it has yet found the earwigs in your own particular garden.

Objectively as they are to most people, earwigs have a commendable trait — the females are most solicitous of their eggs, depositing them in a specially prepared "nest" and standing guard over them until they hatch. Many insects go to elaborate trouble to prepare well-stocked nurseries for their offspring but exceedingly few display maternal care as does the earwig.

In 1915 the first invaders appeared in Seattle and a year later they were discovered in British Columbia. By 1919, they were established in New Westminster and around Vancouver. Ten years later these pests had spread to Victoria and northward up the coast to Alert Bay. In another decade most urban centres on Vancouver Island were well populated and the immigrants had made their first invasion of the Okanagan at Vernon.

By 1952 they had penetrated south to Osoyoos and soon after they appeared in the Kootenays and on the Queen Charlotte Islands. At the present time they are found almost everywhere that man has settled in the southern half of the province and they may continue to spread northward to a limited degree.

Without much doubt transport in every case was through the agency of man. Since earwigs are notably poor flyers their only mode of travel is by being carried in vegetation, in tenting equipment or in other materials likely to be packed where these insects are present. Their habit of crawling into cracks and dark places in general adds to the probability of them being accidentally picked up and transported to new territory.

Ten years later these pests had spread to Victoria and northward up the coast to Alert Bay. In another decade most urban centres on Vancouver Island were well populated and the immigrants had made their first invasion of the Okanagan at Vernon.

By 1952 they had penetrated south to Osoyoos and soon after they appeared in the Kootenays and on the Queen Charlotte Islands. At the present time they are found almost everywhere that man has settled in the southern half of the province and they may continue to spread northward to a limited degree.

Without much doubt transport in every case was through the agency of man. Since earwigs are notably poor flyers their only mode of travel is by being carried in vegetation, in tenting equipment or in other materials likely to be packed where these insects are present. Their habit of crawling into cracks and dark places in general adds to the probability of them being accidentally picked up and transported to new territory.

In 1915 the first invaders appeared in Seattle and a year later they were discovered in British Columbia. By 1919, they were established in New Westminster and around Vancouver. Ten years later these pests had spread to Victoria and northward up the coast to Alert Bay. DIEF'S INVINCIBILITY GONE

'The Chief' Laid Low by Laughter

By PETER C. NEWMAN

Ottawa — The tumultuous events of last weekend have left even John Diefenbaker's ardent critics with the uncomfortable feeling that a worthy human being has somehow been cruelly wounded.

His electoral triumphs of 1957 and 1958 were the product of the spontaneous affection which erupted across the nation for the man from Prince Albert.

This sighted person must figuratively die, go through a period of mourning and a time of regret, before there can be rebirth as a blind person — a new individual — willing to accept and to work toward a new way of life.

This comes easier, he believes, to the totally blind. It is much harder for those who have a little sight left.

A person who meets the definition of "legal blindness" and does register with CNIB finds that rehabilitation, counselling and many other services are free.

Availability of these services depends solely on the speed with which the person accepts the doctor's advice and acts upon it.

Legal blindness, as outlined by the federal department of health, means if sight is such that the person, after best possible correction, can only see at 20 feet what normal sight sees at 200 feet or if the field of vision, after best possible correction, is only 10 degrees.

Right now there are 385 blind persons receiving assistance through the CNIB in the Vancouver Island district.

Sighted persons should try to understand that these are ordinary people like themselves, with the same reactions," Mr. Tymchuk says.

"Some accept blindness in the negative way they have always accepted life. They want attention and sympathy . . . lots of it!"

"Others, more positive, react quite differently. They are very likely to refuse help, even if they do carry the white cane.

"They want to prove to themselves and to others that they can handle the situation alone. Very often they get into trouble. Sometimes they endanger their own lives."

The greater majority — those in between — accept blindness and try to make the best of what they've got left.

"These are the ones who find it easiest to win through to a new way of life."

IS MY FACE RED! Monday evening I told you a chair in McPherson Theatre was named in memory of the late Georgia Watt Hobbs, well-known Victoria singer. What neither theatre manager Robert Ellison nor I knew was that there were two women named Georgia Watt (no relation) married to brothers named Hobbs. It was the other Georgia who died. The singer is very much alive. To her, my profound apologies!

Feelings ran so high that Walker and Heber Smith (Simcoo North) a dedicated anti-Diefenbaker man, came close to fistfights.

Loud Titters

At one point in his oration, comparing the integrity of the Diefenbaker administration with the doubtful ethics of the Pearson government, Walker proclaimed ringingly: "He's an honest man who ran an honest government and I can say that nobody's ever found John Diefenbaker out."

This unintentional slip of the tongue dissolved the caucus into loud titters.

The other occasion for laughter occurred at Saturday's executive meeting after Diefenbaker's main address in which he had damned all his enemies in the party as "termites and chisellers," intent on their personal ambitions.

In reply, there rose from the audience the ramrod proud figure of James MacDonnell, eighty-one years old and his party's most revered symbol of dedication to public service.

"It is possible," MacDonnell calmly admitted, staring at the chief "that I qualify for this term 'termite' since a year ago I was among the few who stood up against the leader. But since, in addition to being a termite, I am also an octogenarian, I doubt if I qualify for the leader's suggestion that all termites are moved by personal ambition."

Hypothetical

Once again there was loud laughter at Diefenbaker's expense.

Despite these and other small humiliations, the question of actually removing Diefenbaker from the party leadership remains as hypothetical as ever.

"There is no constitutional or even unconstitutional way to throw him out," says one senior Tory.

"He will lead the party in the next election. If he loses, there will be a leadership convention three months later. If he wins, about three thousand Conservatives will feel like committing suicide the next morning."

The strategy of the rebels at the executive meeting was complicated by the position of Leon Balcer. Many Conservatives outside Quebec who are anti-Diefenbaker were nevertheless unwilling to appear to be bowing to the demands of the party's French-Canadian lieutenant.

A system thus had to be devised to allow the dissidents to vote against the chief, without at the same time appearing to be voting for Balcer.

The device brought into play was the four-part secret ballot. The final two questions (on a policy advisory committee and party attendance at the flag-raising ceremony) were merely window dressing for the first question on the holding of a leadership convention (as advocated by Balcer) and the all-important second question, designed to measure confidence in Diefenbaker's leadership.

This ballot was devised to allow members of the executive to vote both against Balcer and against Diefenbaker.

After lunch, association president Dalton Camp, certain that he had Diefenbaker's approval, read out the four questions. Diefenbaker suddenly became very agitated, and following a whispered consultation with Gordon Churchill, declared that he would on no account allow a vote to include question number two, on confidence in his leadership.

Vocational Addition Planned for School

A brief will be submitted to the provincial government asking provincial and federal funds be supplied to support the cost of a vocational wing for Claremont Senior Secondary School.

Outer Saanich School Board decided Monday to press for a vocational wing to bring the school in line with new curriculum for secondary schools.

Electronics Firm Buys Ironworks

Canadian Aviation Electronics Ltd., owners of B.C. Air Lines, has purchased Canadian Summer Iron Works, Vancouver, for an undisclosed sum.

CAE president James F. Robley, Montreal, said the 70-year-old company would continue to operate as a division of Canadian Bronze Company, a CAE subsidiary with plants in Montreal, Winnipeg and Calgary.

H. B. Norris will be president of the Vancouver operation which employs 200 men.

Canadian Summer designs and manufactures sawmill equipment, centrifugal pumps and related equipment for the pulp and paper industry.

Barrett Wants Price Per Ounce On Foods, Goods

A private bill requiring packages of foods and household goods to display the price per ounce was to be introduced in the legislature Tuesday.

David Barrett (NDP-Dewdney) said his bill was aimed at eliminating confusion in packaging claims that bedevil shoppers.

Besides the standardizing price information, the bill would require that wholesalers eliminate "qualifying" words in describing sizes and to identify the previous price when reductions are claimed.

"All of us have seen packages, bottles or boxes of food that are described in various misleading terms such as the giant pound, the huge half-pound or even more ridiculous the monstrous quart," Mr. Barrett explained.

"These additional words serve no useful purpose and are only designed to psychologically confuse the buyer."

BOYS JEER AT QUEEN

ELOBEID, Sudan (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth rode calmly today past 300 angry schoolboys shaking their fists and shouting "Down with British policy."

The boys lined the parade route as the Queen, on a state visit to the Sudan, rode in procession through Elobeid to watch a parade of 5,000 camels.

She appeared to take no notice of the boys, one of whom spat at a bus following the British monarch.

8-Month Term For Trying 'To Get Even'

"Getting even" with a former employer resulted in a young man being sent to jail Tuesday for eight months, definite and four months indefinite.

The sentence was imposed on Thomas A. MacLeod who stole a car from Morrison Motors where he once worked. He drove it even though he was suspended.

He told police he did it to "get even" with the employer who had fired him.

Magistrate William Oster said that only one week before the recent offences MacLeod had been convicted of theft and only four days before he had been convicted of dangerous driving.

"Obviously you are not prepared to pay any attention to the law," he told MacLeod.

He said the accused needs discipline and training so that he will be able "to get a job and keep it."

The sentence will be served at the "Young Offenders" Unit.

Take Trip, Shelford Tells Press

People who criticize the latest MLA pay boost proposals are invited to take a trip around the Omeara constituency with Cyril Shelford.

A special invitation went out to newspaper editorial writers who, said the Social Credit backbencher, have no idea how much time and money are spent by a hard-working MLA.

"Between January 9 and May 28 last year I was home for exactly nine days," Mr. Shelford said.

He said that during the year he travelled thousands of miles in his constituency and that it was nothing unusual for his telephone bill to be over $100.

"I would like whoever writes these editorials to take a trip around my constituency with me some time," Mr. Shelford said. "He would see then that our pay is earned."

It was possible that some employees would not be eligible for jobless benefits, he said. There are a tremendous number who have not honored their contract with the railway. Each case will be processed on an individual basis within 35 days.

Robert Miller, PGE compatriot, said Tuesday the question of unemployment insurance is "in a state of flux" and so far only a few workers were seeking to file claims.

'Don't Do It' Opposition's Theme Kiernan

The minister of recreation and conservation is wondering what the government has to do to get a word of praise from the opposition in the legislature.

"We have now reached the $450,000,000 budget stage; the population has increased between three and four per cent, and they now describe it as a 'stand-pat' budget or a 'do-nothing' budget," he said Tuesday.

"It is true that we are now expected to do much more than other governments, but if, we are a little short of earthshaking it's 'stand-pat,'" he added.

Slapping the opposition, both Liberal and NDP, Mr. Kiernan said he had never known a group so determined to stand against progress.

"They told us 'don't build the PGE,'" said the minister. "The Liberals said never, the NDP said refer to committee."

DON'T, DON'T, DON'T

"They told us deficit financing was the only way; that we shouldn't negotiate the Columbia treaty; don't buy the Black Ball ferry line; don't build the Peace River dam until 1980. They have continued, separately and severally, to do their best to create a pool of stagnation in this province."

"They have been so sure nothing could be done that (had they been in power) nothing would have been done," he said.

Mr. Kiernan admitted that all things had not gone as the government planned.

"But we have built as well as could be expected and better than most," he said.

Throughout his attack, the NDP leader Robert Strachan chanted an almost forgotten challenge: "tell us about Wenner-Gren."

IGNORES HECKLERS

Mr. Kiernan ignored the heckling with: "It costs nothing to talk, but you have to provide the revenue if you are to provide the services people expect."

He added that the government would not feel their job complete until "we have taken care of every human need in this province."

As a footnote, and to loud desk-thumping, he said that a "nation" could not be built by giving people the things they could provide for themselves."

WHO'S TO BLAME?

Undecided Jury to Go Before Judge

A coroner's jury will be called before an Assize Court judge after its failure Monday night to reach a verdict in the traffic death of a Saanich man.

The inquest was adjourned by Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre after the jury had deliberated for two hours and 20 minutes of the death of Edward G. Robertson, 32, of 730 Lindsay.

The jury foreman, Vance Gill, 587 Nora Place, said the jury agreed that Robertson's death was not accidental but could not agree on where to attach the blame.

IN DITCH

Robertson was fatally injured at Interurban and Dumeresque Jan. 23. A car drove into the spot where he was hooking up a line from his ditched car to a truck.

The inquest into his death will be resumed at the assizes when a judge will again deliver a charge to the jury on the basis of the evidence so far submitted.

If the jury is then still unable to bring in a verdict it will be dismissed.

Retired Member Of Works Staff Dies Here at 87

Harry Williams, a long-time employee of the City of Victoria public works department, died Monday evening.

He was 87.

He started work for the city 43 years ago when he came to Victoria from Calstock, England, his birthplace.

He retired at 71, and was at that time the oldest man working for the city.

Mr. Williams was a member of the Masonic order and Victoria Branch No. 1, Old Age Pensioners' Organization.

He is survived by the widow, Rose, 433 John St., a nephew, Urban Wright, also of Victoria, and four nieces and a nephew in England.

Rev. T. W. Scott will conduct funeral services at a date yet to be announced. McCall Bros. are in charge.

Socred, Liberal Disagree On Blame for Bus Trouble

Responsibility for providing transit services lies with the Greater Victoria municipalities and not the provincial government, a social Credit member for Victoria told the legislature Tuesday night.

Waldo Skillings said there is no point to becoming too excited about bus fares because this problem has been haunting Greater Victoria for 20 years.

"It is basically the responsibility of the municipalities. It is not the responsibility of this government."

"Nonsense," shouted Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay).

Mr. Skillings said B.C. Hydro inherited the transit franchise expiring in 1967 from B.C. Electric which only obtained it because it was afraid in 1946 that the municipalities would recognize their responsibility for providing transit services.

He said BCE was afraid a municipal-service "would be the thin edge of the wedge in public ownership" that could spread to its electricity and gas operations.

Mr. Skillings also argued that the present government is more generous to municipalities.

He said under the old formula the municipalities would have received $28.2 million in 1963-64.

MUNICIPAL AID

He said this year's budget speech provides $43 million counting per capita grants and the homeowner grant—touching off a chorus of opposition calls that the homeowner grant does not go to municipal governments.

"How crazy can you get?"

Mr. Skillings replied. "Not one taxpayer gets $1 in homeowner grants, it's deducted from their taxes and billed to the government by municipalities."

The money is all forwarded to the municipalities.

The city of Victoria will receive approximately $1 million of homeowner grants this year.

"Now, if it went directly to the city who would benefit?"

This touched off a series of boos and laughter from opposition members who claimed in from several directions that Mr. Skillings had just claimed it went directly to the cities.

"Well I said indirectly, not directly," responded Mr. Skillings after a few moments.

SPECULATORS HIT

Sell Land for Use, Government Urged

Land speculators are the curse of British Columbia, according to MLA Cyril Shelford (SC-Omineka).

Speaking in the budget debate Tuesday night, Mr. Shelford urged the government to crack down on crown land sales to prevent land grabs by non-Canadians.

"We should find out what we are willing to sell for agricultural use or home-site use and only accept applications in those areas," he said.

"The next step to orderly settlement is to sell only to Canadians and those wishing to settle here permanently," Mr. Shelford added.

He said no land should be sold outright to new settlers but that they should be permitted to lease for the first five years with the understanding that they could buy after that time if they had improved the land property.

SPECULATORS

"Speculators are a curse," he added. "They slow down the development of the province. They make power and telephone extensions expensive or impossible. Communities can't grow because land is held and not used. We can't afford this luxury any longer of selling our land like a drunken sailor."

Earlier in his speech Mr. Shelford appealed to the government to take power to rural areas now without electricity.

He said he could not agree with Liberal leader Ray Perreault's request that power rates in the province be lowered.

He continued that if the grants were paid directly to the municipalities, it would result in lower taxes for large department stores and companies.

Mr. Skillings, noting that B.C. Telephone plans to spend $7 million improving service on Vancouver Island, said he has had many complaints about the company from constituents.

He said that it should establish an emergency number service such as the 999 call in Great Britain.

Mr. Skillings also said Premier Bennett should consider putting on a ferry to Seattle if Air Canada does not improve its Victoria-Seattle service.

LONG WAIT

He said with an 11-hour wait between morning and evening round trip connections, it is faster "by six hours" for visitors to hire a car and drive between the two cities than take the flight.

"We must do something as quickly as possible to put in a four-lane highway from Victoria to Swartz Bay," Mr. Skillings said, turning to the government benches.

With this dynamic society and with a budget of $446 million perhaps (Premier Bennett) could find some money to give the minister of highways for this road."

IT JUST WASN'T JACK'S NIGHT

It was one of those "bad dream" nights for Los Angeles goalie Jack McCarran Tuesday night at Memorial Arena. Before evening had ended he had grown weary of pulling puck out of net while Victoria Maple Leafs were skating to 8-2 triumph (Times photo by Bill Halkett).

Ford Knows Score

By MILTON RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — A solemn, faraway look steals across Whitey Ford's normally happy features each time he stops to think what's left for him if his arm doesn't come around.

Realistic as he is, the 36-year-old Yankee left-hander still doesn't consider that possibility too often. Not so much because it frightens him, but because he's convinced his operation was successful and he'll be able to pitch again as well as always.

"I'm sure everything will turn out all right," he said Tuesday after signing a $60,000 contract, which represented his highest one ever.

"If it doesn't, it doesn't." Ford pursed his lips and that strange look clouded his face again.

"I have a few things going for me on the outside. My family wouldn't be destitute," he said, forcing a smile. "What I'd like to do if I could not pitch would be to stay in baseball at least another year or so. But I'm not worried. I'm pretty sure my arm is okay."

The surgery performed on Ford in Houston three months ago was done to relieve a circulatory condition.

"They cut me here," he said, drawing his finger from the left side of his chest to his armpit, "and they went in pretty deep. They worked on some nerves right beside the heart."

"I used to get pain in my left forearm before the operation if I did any work. They told me the blood wasn't getting back fast enough."

As a result of the operation, Ford says he has no pulse beat in his left hand. He also perspires on the right side of his body but not on the left.

The long-time Yankee ace hasn't tested his arm seriously since the surgery was performed last Nov. 9.

"Oh, I've thrown a football in my backyard . . . I dummy, about 20 yards I guess . . . and I've thrown a tennis ball to my dog, but that's all. There was no pain at all."

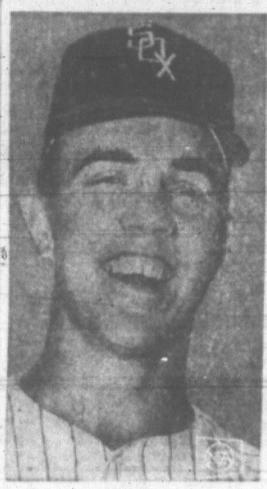

It is typical of Ford that he stubbornly refused to alibi, even four months later, for his defeat at the hands of the Cardinals in the first game of the World Series last October. He lasted only 5 1/2 innings.

"That was just bad pitching on my part," he said. "I didn't have good stuff that day but the arm didn't bother me. Only four days before that I pitched one of the best games I ever did against Cleveland."

Ford's arm did bother him after the opening game of the World Series and he never pitched again.

Whitey plans to leave for the Yankees' spring training site in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with his family next Wednesday. He also plans to take his regular pitching turn every fourth day. Providing his arm is okay, that is.

"The doctor who operated on me said he thought I'd be able to pitch again," Ford commented. "His word is good enough for me."

Toe Replaces Gump; Bids to End Slump

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charlie Hodge will be in the Montreal nets tonight when the Canadiens meet the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Coach Toe Blake's decision to reactivate Hodge was one of several moves engineered by Canadiens brass Tuesday to snap the Habs out of their worst slump in nine years—a four-game losing streak during which they have been outscored 17-3.

Aside from pulling out Gump Worsley, Blake called up defenseman Noël Picard from the minors to bolster a porous defense, benched rookie Yvan Cournoyer and completely rearranged his forward lines.

In the only other National Hockey League game scheduled tonight, Chicago Black Hawks, with Bobby Hull sitting on the sidelines, play host to Detroit Red Wings.

Only five points separate these top four teams in the standings and it could get tighter. Victories by Toronto and Detroit would cut the gap to three points with Chicago on top.

LOST LAST FOUR

Worsley replaced Hodge in the nets three weeks ago after the Canadiens lost three straight. Montreal then won six of seven, but have dropped their last four starts including a 6-0 blanking at Detroit Sunday night.

"Worsley hasn't been responsible for losing any of those games but Hodge has a good record against Toronto," explained general manager Sam Pollock.

Picard was called up from Omaha of the Central Pro circuit, where the 185-pounder has been enjoying a successful season. The Habs will dress six defensemen, but seven—goal man Jean-Guy Talbot may play left wing.

At practice in Detroit Monday, Blake juggled his lines thoroughly. He had Ralph Backstrom between Claude Provost and Dave Balon, Henri Richard centering Dick Duff and Bobby Rousseau and Jean Beliveau at centre with John Ferguson and Claude Larose.

FIGHT RESULTS

NEW YORK—Bill Collins, 131, Detroit, knocked out Ricky Ortiz, 148 1/2, Houston, Tex., outpointed Levy Madi, 131, South Africa, 10.

CAPE TOWN — Joe Brown, 136 1/2, Houston, Tex., outpointed Levy Madi, 131, South Africa, 10.

REEVE EMMOTT ENVISIONS . . .

Burnaby's Brewin' Up Stadium-Arena Complex

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Plans for a mammoth sports complex which would include a 40,000-seat football stadium, a 13,000 ice centre, hockey rink and basketball stadium, all within a one-section area, were revealed by Reeve Alan Emmott of Burnaby Tuesday.

The complex would cost $6,000,000 and the football stadium would feature 40,000 seats with unobstructed view, all between the goal lines.

The reeve said success of the project would depend heavily on contributions from both the federal and provincial governments.

"If $100 million can be spent in Montreal in 1967, a few million dollars can be spent here," Reeve Emmott said. He said the remainder of the money would be raised by the establishment of a responsible society to promote the sale of debentures or bonds."

"No representation will be made for funds at a municipal level," the reeve told UPI. "The municipality will have done its part by either donating or leasing the land on a long term basis."

Emmott said he had already requested meetings with B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett and

Leafs Had a Big Party After Bill Got His Gift

Mazur Scores Three Goals As Blades Humiliated 8-2

Victoria 8, Los Angeles 2

By DOUG PEDEN

Gordie Haworth tossed a surprise party for Bill Shvetz Tuesday night at Memorial Arena and burly Bill promptly celebrated by blasting the starch out of Los Angeles Blades.

This was in the second period of a tight hockey tussle while the Blades appeared likely to snap a 1-1 deadlock with Victoria Maple Leafs.

The Blades, hoping to start on the stairs leading out of the Western Hockey League cellar, were attempting to exploit a manpower advantage after a penalty to Victoria's Sandy Hulc. Gordie Haworth, the veteran LA centre who once toiled for Victoria Cougars, was trying to bring the puck out of the Los Angeles end while being harassed by Gordie Redahl.

Haworth finally fired a cross-link pass in front of his own rink to give the Leafs a 2-1 lead.

Before the festivities were over, three defencemen and The Spider had bounced the Blades into a precarious position in their struggle to grab a playoff spot.

Leaf Rearguards Had Great Night

Once Shvetz had opened the gates, the Leafs poured through. They were in front 4-1 after the second period and hammered home four more goals in the final session to finish with an 8-2 triumph and a four-point cushion over fifth-place San Francisco.

Shvetz, of course, was the ring-leader among the rear-guards. In addition to firing the key goal, he played a solid defensive game and nailed a few of coach Alfie Pike's men, notably Willie O'Ree, with solid body-checks.

Also on the list of stars was

Keenan Enjoyed Clear Run for 28th

Then Los Angeles defenceman Fred Keenan had the puck in old-time style to collect four assists. One minute after the Shvetz sizzler, Fred came up with a big play to give the Leafs a more comfy cushion.

The Blades were attacking and they tossed the puck toward the Victoria goal. Hulc was waiting in the right spot and quickly laced a pass down the middle to catch Milan Marcelli behind the Los Angeles defence.

Marcelli cruised in to draw

McCartan and slide home his 25th goal of the campaign to make it 3-1.

One Play Expected But One Wasn't

"The wing was locked up and Haworth had to either carry the puck or pass it up centre," Shvetz said later about his gift.

"So I swung into the centre, but I sure was surprised when he passed right to me."

"I was even more surprised when the shot went in."

Hulc and Marcelli had rehearsed the play that produced Marcelli's goal.

"We kept talking about the play during the game, but that was the first time we were able to catch the defence in the right position," Hulc recalled.

"It worked just as we had planned."

"Victory, which kept the Leafs within four points of third-place Vancouver Canucks, was particularly pleasing for coach Rudy Plouffe."

Pilous, who faced a problem to get his charges keyed up after a nine-day break in the schedule, was confident but cautious before the game.

"This is going to be a real good game," he said. "It means a lot to both clubs, but our team is eager to go and I think we'll be alright."

The Leafs were eager. And

Keenan probably should have had a penalty shot after being tripped by Norm Johnson after breaking into the clear in the final minute . . . referred

CYO thinks so.

He will bring his golden arm to Central at 7:30 p.m.

He will use it to try and give

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

BROADWAY GRAPEVINE . . . Danny Thomas, who slaves in connection with seven television series, plans to go into film production — perhaps even a Main Stem musical. Friends and fans are wondering if the ailing Pearl Bailey, who has a date to go into the Americana on April 19, will be well enough to make it. Although she's currently hospitalized with heart strain, her engagement is still definite as far as the hotel is concerned, and Pearl would be proud to know the advance reservations for her appearance are at an all-time high . . . At least five giant show business names are on the verge of divorce. Some have kiddies going for them, some have the "all-American image" solidly planted with their audiences, but they're all headed for the divorce courts unless miracles happen.

Talk of the trade is Allan Sherman's funny double-truck ad in Variety on the subject of his recent TV spec. If they were giving out Oscars for ads, he'd rate one . . . Jerry Burke, who has been the organist-pianist with the Lawrence Welk orchestra more than 30 years, is hospitalized in California. No reason given . . . Ever since Peter O'Toole was the cover-boy on a weekly magazine, hair stylist Marc Sinclair has been besieged by autograph hunters in hotel lobbies, in restaurants and on the pavements. They refuse to believe he's not the motion picture star — there is a remarkable resemblance — so he escapes by signing "O'Toole."

Carol Channing's gross last year fell just a mite short of half a million dollars . . . Anne Francis, returning to the silver screen in the shocker "Brainstorm," didn't mind making some on-the-set comments about the hazards of matrimony. She said:

"I'm still in the process of working out a property settlement with Dr. Robert Abeloff. I divorced him last year. I have the custody of my daughter, Jane Elizabeth, who is two. I haven't been steady dating with anyone. It takes a girl years to get over a wrecked marriage. At this point I want no exclusive contracts — except for acting." Oh, Anne, think of Doris Day, among others. She's had three husbands and never for a moment did she show any perturbation, let alone carrying on about "a wrecked marriage."

Trumpet player Jonah Jones, who soared to fame as a Capitol recording artist, has switched to the Decca label . . . Don't be surprised if the sleeper entry in the Academy Award songstakes isn't "Chim-Chim Cheree," from "Mary Poppins" . . . Bob Hope is too big to feud with anyone, but chubby comedienne Totie Fields is stirring up a small rumpus by claiming that he, or his writers, lifted some of her material.

Have a quote from John Drew Barrymore: "I want to concentrate more than anything else in the world on my writing . . . I think it's more creative than anything else . . . I've written synopses and treatments for movies . . . Right now, I write for pleasure, but some day I'll write for money. Poetry I never write for money. If it can please one person or yourself, this is enough." John, honey, as an old friend from the discotheques, let me clue you in: a writer is someone who gets paid for writing. If you don't get any money from your sonnets, the operative word is "dilettante."

Vittorio De Sica will be awarded the highest honors from the Rome Cinema D'Essai for his direction of the Sophia Loren-Marcello Mastroianni hit, "Marriage Italian Style" . . . Joe DiMaggio's conspicuous Hollywood date is Linda Bennett . . . Judy Garland will become a New Yorker again, to the delight of New Yorkers. She's rented Miriam Hopkins' fashionable East Side town house.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

Questions Mean Tourists

The people of B.C. need to be taught how important the tourist is to them individually, W. K. Kiernan, minister of recreation and conservation told the legislature Tuesday.

The steady growth of tourism was reflected in the number of inquiries about B.C. received by the government, he said.

During a 30-day period in 1960 the government information centre received 9,000 letters asking for information on vacation spots in the province.

"It increased in 1961 and by 1962 was up to 13,000 letters during that same 30-day period in May and June," he said. "In 1963 it had jumped to 17,000 and last year during that same period we received 23,000 mailed inquiries."

Mr. Kiernan added that in 1963 the government distributed 350,000 B.C. road maps. This year 750,000 maps will be printed.

The minister said that similar growth had been shown in the distribution of the government printed magazine "Beautiful British Columbia."

Circulation now stood at 44,000 paid subscriptions which, with over the counter sales included, meant a 100,000 press run.

"In the next four issues we are confident that we can sell 500,000 copies."

New Agreement Going Before Bakery Salesmen

Tentative agreement has been reached by negotiators in a dispute between three B.C. bakers and the Bakery Salesmen's Union.

The agreement will be presented to about 135 driversalesmen including 15 in Victoria, said an union spokesman. No details were given.

The three companies involved are Weston, General Bakeries and Mother Hubbard. Only Weston has a branch here.

Earlier, tentative agreement was reached between McGavin-Toastmaster and its 200 driversalesmen, 33 of them in Victoria.

The proposed three-year settlement, to be voted on by members, called for a $20 weekly increase.

REASONABLE ATTITUDE ASKED BY KIERNAN

'No Good to Scream at Minister'

Conservationists should learn to live with things they can't change.

W. K. Kiernan, minister of recreation and conservation, didn't mention the Campbell River Fish and Game Club, by name Tuesday when he pleaded for a "reasonable" attitude towards Western Mines Ltd. and its operation in Strathcona Provincial Park.

But he did say that "people who say, 'yes, you've got the right (to mine) but we're going to make it so tough you'll wish you had never started,' are talking nonsense."

Earlier Tuesday the Campbell River group said it did not object to the mine operation, nor to the building of homes for key personnel at the mine, but they did object to Western Mines proposal to build a town to house all mine employees.

Mr. Kiernan said in the legislature that it would do no good for people "to stand up and scream that the minister should straighten out a 30-year-old situation."

He stressed that Crown mining rights had been granted in the area, some 30 years ago, and that companies holding those rights could not be stopped from exploiting their claims.

no townsite decision

"There are 100 Crown grants in that area and 200 claims of record," he said. "I can understand any group watching the aesthetic value (and) development but not in making it impossible."

Mr. Kiernan added that he had as yet made no decision on the Western Mines application to build a townsite in the park area.

The company is seeking permission to build a town at the southeast end of Buttle Lake, half a mile from the lakeshore and 500 feet above the lake in elevation.

The department of recreation and conservation is believed to be in favor of a townsite, but on a burned-off area a few miles from the mine.

The game club wants the townsite on the outside of the park area 25 to 30 miles from the mine.

Their spokesman, George F. Bergsma, says he does not think this is too far for miners to commute.

Second Look Promised On School Levy

DUNCAN — The longer it is "put off," the more chance increasing municipal assessment will help pay for it.

This was the argument of North Cowichan delegates which Tuesday night won them a "second look" by Cowichan School Board 65 on the plan to put the whole $70,000 local share of a new vocational wing at Cowichan Senior Secondary School in this year's budget.

Coun. George Whittaker said the municipality would have to pay 55 per cent of the $70,000 and this would make "quite a difference" to the mill rate. He suggested the two-year spread.

(A mill in North Cowichan is equivalent to $32,000.)

Coun. Whittaker said the council must not frighten industry away.

UP $340,622

The total school board budget for 1965 is $2,254,135, an increase of $340,622.

More than 50 per cent of the total, $1,218,356 is taken up by teachers' salaries, a 16 per cent increase.

Joseph F. Rumento, board chairman, said the local apportionment would probably be in line with last year when North Cowichan paid 49.6 per cent; Duncan city, 14.5 per cent; and the rural area, 35.8 per cent.

IMPERATIVE

The board also decided when the maple leaf flags are available they will be hoisted on the same day at all schools.

In another recommendation to be sent to the B.C. School Trustees Association, they ask that the association give some consideration to the role of the Red Ensign in the schools in the future.

The board felt a Red Ensign should be framed in each school as a part of the nation's tradition.

FROM THE RICE field to the international field will be part of a lecture given to Campbell River residents Feb. 26 by Paul Lin, special lecturer in Asian studies at UBC. The talk is part of a two-day seminar at which three UBC lecturers will discuss the struggle between Russia and Red China.

MID-APRIL FOR SOME

Long Layoffs Face Loggers

DUNCAN—Higher level logging operations in the Cowichan district won't get under way again until mid-April.

An estimated 950 loggers, including those employed out of the area, are unemployed.

Robert Robinson, National Employment Service, also says in his January report: "The heaviest snowfall for many years caused consternation in the construction industry."

UNPREPARED

Contractors were totally unprepared for working under adverse weather conditions.

Mr. Robinson says an emergency publicity "blitz" by the local winter employment committee, backed by the three district chambers of commerce, gave a spur to indoor construction work.

$21,006 Spent On Snow Removal

POR ALBERNI — Snow removal for 1964 and January of this year in Port Alberni cost $21,006, city general superintendent Len Crowshaw told council.

He said roads had been hard hit with damage from frost and tire chains but the damage was confined to roads surfaced prior to 1950.

Jim Bates, one of three men who own and operate Tyee Bus Company, said the company would not make a profit this year if transit fares if ratepayers fail to approve a $22,000 annual subsidy.

Mr. Bates said the company is in deep financial trouble and needs immediate assurance from council that the subsidy bylaw will be put before the owner-elects.

BATTING AVERAGES GOING UP?

Legislators jokingly batted their salary increases around the "infield" after Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin) tossed the ball into play Tuesday.

Later, William Speare (SC-Cariboo) also supported the boost which will give the ordinary MLA a raise from a total of $6,400 to $8,135.

Mr. Calder said he was also glad to see Premier Bennett's salary will be boosted too, because he was underpaid for the job and even with the raise will only make as much "as a third rate baseball player" in the United States.

This brought a round of quips. "He's no Babe Ruth," called out Gordon Gibson (L—North Vancouver).

"Just a pinch hitter," added Liberal Leader Ray Perrault. "It's a sacrifice play," Premier Bennett tossed in. "Ottawa gets it anyway."

Mr. Calder said the MLAs boost "is a fair increase and I hope the critics can understand the situations involving our responsibilities locally and provincially."

MUCH TIME
He said MLAs have to devote considerable time and energy to their constituencies and in far-flung northern constituencies the cost is very high.

Mr. Speare, who as deputy speaker will receive an extra $2,500 sessional allowance, said the raise still will not cover all MLA expenses for travelling and telephoning.

"Personally, I think (the raises) are fully justified and I think every member here who is prepared to do his job will earn it," he said.

"With the increase in work and costs, I think the people of this province will go along with this increase as well. The criterion will be whether we do our job."

UVIC STUDENTS SWAP VISITS WITH AMERICANS

An exchange visit of university students is under way between Victoria and Olympia, Wash.

The visits have been arranged so the students can see legislators at work.

Fifteen students of the University of Western Washington arrive Monday for a two-day stay which included tours of the Legislative Buildings.

Today, 35 students of Victoria's university students went to Olympia, the Washington State capital, as guests of Pacific Lutheran College. They will tour the government buildings and meet state politicians.

PGE REPORT DUE TODAY

An industrial commissioner's report which might lead to settlement of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway dispute with the Brotherhood of Trainmen was to be released in Vancouver today.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson's office said the long-awaited report of Dean G. Neil Perry has been received by the minister and would be released.

There was no indication in the notice whether it might contain a formula that would end the current strike. (See also Page 6)

Probe Asked On 'Gestapo' RCMP Arrest

The attorney-general's department has asked RCMP here to investigate charges a Burnaby hotel salesman was improperly arrested on a speeding charge.

Patrick Gordon Shea of Burnaby said in a letter to Attorney-General Robert Bonner that his arrest was a classic example of "Gestapo tactics."

He said he had been stopped for speeding last May near Revelstoke, but that officers issued no tickets. They told him he would receive a ticket in a few weeks.

He didn't hear anything further until an RCMP officer arrested him in his Burnaby office six months later.

TO JAIL

Mrs. Shea said he was taken to jail, despite his offer to appear voluntarily immediately after my interview with a client.

His objections, he says, are not to being fined for speeding, but to the manner in which he was arrested.

United RCMP who questioned him near Revelstoke took his home and business addresses and could have served him with a summons anytime.

The Criminal Code says police can obtain warrants for arrest only by showing that an accused person has ignored a summons or it appears an accused is evading police who want to serve a summons.

Since he didn't get a summons in the first place, Mr. Shea speculates police, when they applied to a magistrate for the arrest warrant, claimed he had been evading service.

After his arrest in his office, Mr. Shea said he was convicted of speeding and fined $50 at Revelstoke.

PORT HARDY BUS RUN STARTS SUNDAY

'Rugged, Awesome, Beautiful'

By JIM HUME

The first stage of "The Route of the Haidas" will be opened Sunday by Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

At 8:20 that morning the first bus link between Victoria and Port Hardy 365 bus-miles north of here will start its inaugural run.

In 1966 the first B.C. Government Ferry will start operations between the northern Vancouver Island port and Prince Rupert providing tourists with the second and final link in the great circle route.

"It's terrific," was the reaction of M. E. Hepple, assistant commissioner of the Vancouver Island Tourist Bureau. "Once the ferry is in operation, the joint bus-ferry service will revolutionize the entire Island."

Mr. Hepple said that great interest in the Port Hardy-Prince Rupert ferry run was already being expressed in the United States.

FLOCK HERE!

"When they hear that they can make the round trip via Victoria, Campbell River, Prince Rupert and the Alaska Highway along established bus routes they will flock here in the hundreds," he added.

Ron Worley, assistant manager of B.C. Ferries, is also happy.

"I hope that there is sufficient interest in the service now, because operating the route will give the line a year's experience and the time to figure out how they can service the ferry when it gets in operation in May, 1966," he said.

The first bus will leave Victoria at 8:20 Sunday morning and, with one change at Campbell River, arrive in Port Hardy at 9:45 p.m. the same day.

General manager of Coach Lines, C. Conway Parrott, said although the route was primarily to provide Island communities with their first direct bus link, tourists would doubtless play a vital role on the new route.

"Depending on overnight accommodation, which will surely come, the whole north end of the Island will open to tourists," he said.

SIGHTS TO SEE

"The beauty of the Nimpkish Valley and Bonanza Lake, the sea coast between Beaver Cove, Port McNeill and Port Hardy will all be seen from the bus. It's rugged, awesome and beautiful country and it will certainly attract the tourist."

The service, first to unite the full length of the Island, will operate northbound on Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday with southbound runs Monday and Wednesday Port Hardy at 8 a.m.

COST $21.90

The 12 hour, 25 minute trip from Victoria to the northern terminal will cost the traveller $21.90.

After the bus change at Campbell River the bus will swing southwest over government road, through Elk River Timber Co., holdings to the Tahsis Road townsite junction.

From there the route turns north over logging roads maintained by Crown Zellerbach, Canadian Forest Products and Rayonier.

Mr. Parrott said the new route was made possible because of pioneer road work by the logging companies.

"We are discharging our responsibility to the north Islanders and are able to do so through the co-operation of the logging companies," Mr. Parrott said. "These are roads that they build and to open them to the public is a tremendous goodwill gesture."

Mr. Parrott said the new service would be a year-round operation depending on weather conditions and snow clearance through the co-operation of the logging companies.

"We added that operating over logging roads is nothing new for the 37-year-old bus company.

EAST TO WEST

"In 1960 Coach Lines began service from Campbell River to Gold River over logging roads, thus opening the Island from east to west," he said.

New $48,000 air-ride coaches will be operated over the route with points of call—Vernon Camp, Woss, Nimpkish, Hukish, Beaver Cove and Port McNeill. Mr. Parrott said Coal Harbour would also be included by an auxiliary route if residents requested service and backed the request up by use.

Regular meal and rest stops have been organized along the route for the convenience of travellers.

The service will also tie-in with ferry services to Vancouver with the one-way through fare from Port Hardy to the mainland $18.90.

Stores Jarred By U.S. Cutback

Tourist Purchases Face Curtailment

Topics of the Day

Victoria merchants reeled today from an economic uppercut delivered from south of the border.

The blow was contained in a message from President Johnson to Congress. It could mean U.S. tourists will be able to buy only one-third as much in duty-free goods in Canada this year.

15% OF TRADE

Miss M. J. Hamilton of the Spode Shop, 1007 Government, said Government Street merchants depend on the U.S. tourists for 75 per cent of their trade.

"This could be very bad," she said. "It would make a terrific difference to all of us. No one likes to pay duty."

Mrs. Ella Worrel of the Tarzan Shop was less excited by the prospects:

"I've been in this business for 42 years. These things sound dreadful. But in the end they don't make a lot of difference. People who want things will pay for them anyhow."

She thought the proposed change in the duty-free structure might have the effect of making things more difficult for duty-free stores, which could react to benefit of the Government Street stores.

The business community felt some relief that the developments in the U.S. weren't worse.

There had been discussion there about a tax of $50 to $100 on every tourist going abroad. There was no mention of this measure in the president's remarks.

He said persons who do not remain at the scene of an accident "are not going to have licences for their work."

He made the comment in sentencing Richard Harwood, 1112 Empress. Harwood was fined $125.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birrell said Harwood hit a parked car on Bay Street near Prior shortly after midnight Tuesday.

Harwood was arrested five hours later at his home. He said he thought his car had only hit the bumper of the parked vehicle.

John Cannon, 1051 Hyacinth, was sent to jail for seven days Tuesday for hit-and-run driving.

The young man drove into a car on Lansdowne Road early Sunday and then drove away.

Magistrate William Ostler said he had no intention of being harsh in sentencing Cannon but he could not let him off with a fine since he is at present on bond for a previous offence.

The Rotary Boys' Choir will give a concert Friday at 8:15 p.m. in the Emmanuel Baptist Church Hall, 1900 Fernwood Road.

The choir will be conducted by William Hastings and Mrs. Helen McVie will be the accompanist.

The concert, sponsored by the Peranon Group of the church, is open to the public.

A Junior Forest Warden Club has been organized in Metchosin.

Under the direction of Christopher Pike, the district supervisor, the boys will receive instruction in forestry and conservation. The program is sponsored by the Canadian Forestry Association of B.C.

QORs Keeping Sharp For Call to Cyprus

Standing by for an expected transfer to Fort MacLeod, West Germany.

Command of the battalion was taken over Jan. 22 by Lt.-Col. C. L. Kirby from Ottawa. He said he would demand "nothing but the best" for his soldiers in their standby role for United Nations' peace-keeping duties abroad.

Maj.-Gen. J. M. Rockingham, commanding officer Western Command, said:

"There is every probability and possibility, if the government continues its peace-keeping duties, this battalion will go to Cyprus."

"We don't go to Cyprus, we shall continue to train for service anywhere in the world," a spokesman said. "That is, we shall still be on a stand-by basis."

BAND AT ARMORY

To make more room for military exercises at Work Point Barracks, the battalion's 33-piece band of drums and bugles is now in training at the Bay Street Armory.

Military exercises are in full swing around the barracks and the Bay Street Armory is being used as an auxiliary training centre.

If the federal government decides to move the battalion to Cyprus next month, officers and men of the First Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada have stepped up their training program.

INNOVATIONS

The branch is studying three innovations in other areas to see if they could be used in B.C. to fill the gap:

Establishment of a probation service hostel where the youths could live while continuing their education or jobs;

A weekend training program, similar to the character development "Outward Bound" program in England, which would allow the youths to live

HUP HELICOPTER MUSEUM-BOUND

'The Banana' Slips Into History

The last of three Royal Canadian Navy air-sea rescue helicopters on the west coast is leaving today.

Retired after more than 13 years' service, the Piasecki HUP-3, better known as the "flying banana," will be preserved for posterity at the War Museum in Ottawa.

He said a road along the beach was gazetted long ago.

"It's about time something was done to build it," he said.

The Hup first came into naval service in 1952.

The helicopters served gallantly. George Medals were awarded two crew members and there were numerous commendations.

The "banana" carried a crew of two. It could accommodate four passengers. Its range was about 100 miles.

Due to economy measures, no replacement has as yet been named for the "Hup."

Dowell's Cartage and Storage Ltd. of Victoria is handling the transfer of the aircraft from Pat Bay to the E. & N. Railway yards on Government Street.

The helicopter will take its last trip on a railway flatcar.

Mrs. Thomas Kowalchuk, convener of entertainment for Saturday's IODE festival, and Reg Stone share a preview of some of the numbers which Mr. Stone will play at the two shows.

Huge IODE Festival on Saturday To Mark Order's 65th Birthday

The Club Sirocco will be the scene of a gigantic 65th anniversary festival on Saturday, February 13. The event is being sponsored by the local municipal and primary chapters of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire in celebration of the founding of the organization.

The affair will be opened at 11 a.m. by Mrs. George R. Peakes. She will be preceded to the platform by the 10 standard bearers of the local chapters to the strains of "Land of Hope and Glory".

A variety of stalls will feature everything to delight the shopper. There'll be a French shop, aprons and novelties, delicatessen, home cooking, fortune telling, candy, jams, jellies, a lucky dip and Ye Olde Curiosity Shoppe.

Luncheon will be served from noon to 1:30 p.m. and tea from 3 to 4 p.m.

An auction will be held from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. and a song and dance revue, "From Bustles to Bikinis" will have two showings.

To Come Here for UCW Session

The president of the British Columbia Conference of United Church Women, Mrs. Donald Elliott, will come from West Vancouver next Tuesday to attend the opening session of the annual meeting of the Victoria Presbyteral United Church Women, to be held in First United Church. Mrs. Elliott will be guest speaker.

Registration will begin at 7:30 p.m. with delegates and members being greeted by president, Mrs. J. H. Sneddon. Dr. W. H. Kerley, Fairfield United Church, will give the inspirational message. Soloist of the evening will be Mrs. Margaret Christison. Mrs. Willard Ireland will be organist.

The sessions will continue Wednesday morning and afternoon with Mrs. Murray Henderson, Belmont United Church, conducting the service of worship. Mrs. F. G. Matkin, president of First United Church Women, will give the welcome. Miss Annie Thexton, literature secretary, will give short reviews of the study and worship books on display at a special table.

Prior to a communion service, to be conducted at noon by Rev. R. J. D. Morris, First United Church, departmental conferences will be held for presidents, vice-presidents, unit leaders and cover such subjects as program and resources materials, finance and treasurers, citizenship, social action, stewardship, recruiting, visiting and Christian education.

Following a box luncheon, Miss Gladys Beall will convene a meeting on conference findings. Mrs. W. Gibb will present nominations and Rev. E. Laura Buffer, chairman of the Victoria Presbytery, will conduct the election and install the officers. She will also address the meeting.

Reports of courtesy and resolutions committee will be presented and proceedings closed by Mrs. Sneddon.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE CHAPTER, IODE

EDUCATION RECEIVES BIG ASSIST

An impressive record of work done in the field of education was reported by educational secretary, Mrs. Norman Turner, when the Florence Nightingale Chapter IODE met for its annual luncheon meeting in the Pacific Club Monday.

Out of a total of $645.75 spent on this work, $461 was used for bursaries and advanced educational projects. Both the Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital received donations of $50 for the nurses' libraries. Miss Evelyn Whitney, a graduate of the Royal Jubilee Hospit, received a bursary of $100. The Ida Mellor bursary for $100 was received by Miss Lynn Gardner, a second-year student at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Both bursaries were awarded for proficiency in bedside nursing.

Books and gifts to the amount of $59.75 were sent to the chapter's adopted schools at Turnour and Saturna Islands.

To help further her musical career, Miss Jill Paver received a $50 bursary.

Mrs. G. C. Baker, services at home and abroad, reported a sum of $528 spent on charitable work at home and abroad. This total included: Cross of Sacrifice, $5.25; restoration of veterans' graves, $12.50; Eskimo kits, $42.50; food for retarded children, $60, and a wax polisher for Goodwill Enterprises, $10.

Mrs. Baker also announced that used clothing and goods given to the Goodwill Enterprises amounted to $81, while knitted goods to Koreans, given through the municipal project, amounted to $276.50.

The secretary, Mrs. Tom Lumden, reported the installing it costs so little — why not phone tonight?

What a better way to add a happy memory to the day than a phone call to someone who is near or dear to you? For the miles are no longer a problem when you cover them by phone.

Long distance rates are among the very few items of personal expenditure that have actually been reduced. Moreover, after 6 p.m. each evening and all day Sunday they are cheaper by about one-fifth. Check the rates for yourself in your telephone directory or dial "O" and ask the operator.

In many cases you may be surprised how little it costs to enjoy "the next best thing to being there". In the evening, for example, you can make a call between Vancouver and Prince George for as little as $1.35; between New Westminster and Calgary for only $1.50; between Victoria and Toronto for a mere $2.35.

These are pretty modest prices to pay for the very best-minutes of the day. Why not phone TONIGHT?

HANKINSON

Court Quashes Two Charges

Magistrate William Ostler in city court Tuesday quashed two charges against ex-city car dealer George K. Hankinson.

Hankinson was charged with unlawfully conferring benefits on a government official, G. E. P. Jones, chairman of the purchasing commission.

Magistrate Ostler based his decision on a judgment given last month by County Court Judge Montague Drake, that Jones is not a government official within the meaning of the section of the Criminal Code under which Hankinson was charged.

BASIS OF MOTION

J. Alan Baker, defence counsel for Hankinson, used Judge Drake's judgment as the basis for his motion that the charges be quashed.

Mr. McKenzie argued that Judge Drake based his judgment about Jones' status on a decision by a Quebec court in a somewhat similar case involving a member of the Liquor Control Board in that province.

Mr. McKenzie said the judge was apparently unaware that this Quebec decision had been reversed by the Supreme Court of Canada.

He said Magistrate Ostler should follow the Supreme Court ruling.

Magistrate Ostler, in his judgment, said the Supreme Court had held in the Quebec case that the Liquor Board was a government department and anyone employed by it was a government official.

But, he said, it is arguable that it necessarily follows that the chairman of the B.C. purchasing commission is a government official.

SHOW OF STRENGTH—Women members of the Indonesian military march through Jakarta streets as preparedness for an armed showdown with Malaysia. It's estimated that Indonesia's military forces total 500,000 troops.

The magistrate indicated that no one could tell precisely what effect the Supreme Court decision had on Judge Drake or whether or not he even considered it.

He said he "may not conjecture or speculate" on this point. The magistrate added that his decision could be appealed by the Crown.

The Crown, if it decides not to appeal Magistrate Ostler's decision, could still proceed against Hankinson by indictment without a preliminary hearing.

Crown Prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie said after the dismissal that it will be up to the attorney-general's department to decide if new proceedings will be instituted.

Control Wastes Of Pulp Mills

The pulp industry's major advances in the province should not be made at the expense of the fishing industry, Frank Calder (NDP-Atlin) declared Tuesday in the legislature.

He called for strengthening of the pollution control board so that it could require full safeguards to avoid toxic wastes from pulp mills poisoning salmon in the province's rivers.

"In the public interest, I bring to the attention of this House the concern of those in the fishing industry that their rights and their means of livelihood may be safeguarded," he said.

"I hope that legislation which would provide for strict scientific control of toxic elements be included in order that the pulp and paper and fishing industries may move forward without any interference."

He also called for a study aimed at establishing a government air ambulance branch under the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

Mr. Calder said it would help if only a partial subsidy of emergency flights was provided by the government.

'Native Languages Must Be Maintained'

The legislature's only Indian member Tuesday pleaded for measures to ensure survival of the native B.C. Indian languages.

Frank Calder (NDP-Atlin) said money should be provided so that the University of Victoria's recently established linguistics department, the provincial museum and university extension departments could undertake the job of research and preservation.

He said increasing urbanization, industrialization and education is creating a situation in which the native languages of the province could disappear within another generation.

"The Indian people, without realizing it, have gone away gradually from the use of their own native languages," he said. "The English language is the language now used by the urban Indian."

Mr. Calder said Indian children in urban environments now learn to talk English and even Indian families living on reserves "use mostly English" in conversing with each other.

TOPKAPI
Comedy Thriller
Royal Theatre.

Here is jewel-thieving in the grand manner. No petty pilfering here, but a bold strategic coup, planned down to the last detail and carried out with split-second timing.

Through most of this sequence the film is silent. No background music, no voices, scarcely even a rustle as the thieves go about their delicate business.

There are times when the suspense seems almost undurable (even to a hardened movie-goer like myself) and the palms grow moist with apprehension.

A talented cast was moved to Istanbul for the shooting of this comedy-thriller and the exotic coloring adds to the general charm of a film which has no purpose other than to entertain.

I have seen Peter Ustinov as Nero and other strange characters, but never thought I should see him as a nervous jewel thief who can't stand heights and almost falls to his doom during a roof-top reconnaissance of the palace to be robbed.

He is partnered in crime with Melina Mercouri (she with the flashing brown eyes), the handsome Maximilian Schell, the bumbling Robert Morley, Akim Tamiroff, Gilles Segal and Jess Hahn.

The story is a free-wheeling translation of Eric Ambler's book, "The Light of Day," and producer-director Jules Dassin keeps the whole thing in such a light key that jewel-thieving seems more of a joke than a crime.

Briefly: Melina Mercouri is a beautiful thief with a mania for jewels (the more inaccessible the better) and a gem-encrusted dagger worn by a waxwork prince in the Istanbul's Topkapi Palace draws her like an electro-magnet.

Her lover (Maximilian Schell) is a master thief—an artist on the job—who insists on working with assistants who don't have police records.

He enlists the help of a screwball inventor (Robert Morley) and an amiable amateur (Peter Ustinov) in carrying out a daring raid on the closely-guarded palace.

The action builds up slowly and purposefully to a suspenseful and amusing climax, with some magnificent scenery along the way.

Ballet Gets 40-Minute Applause

LONDON (AP)—The Royal Ballet's new Romeo and Juliet, with 45-year-old Dame Margot Fonteyn dancing the teen-age heroine, won ecstatic reviews today after a triumphant opening that brought 43 curtain calls.

A great roar of applause led by Princess Margaret went up at the final curtain and lasted almost 40 minutes. Even Fonteyn, the western world's greatest ballerina, had seen nothing like it.

Fonteyn took seven calls alone on Covent Garden's huge stage. Fonteyn's partner, 25-year-old Rudolf Nureyev, took six calls alone under a rain of flowers from the gallery.

He danced in pain from an ankle injury. The times critic said he danced "with half a foot better than most men with two."

Much of the cheers went to Kenneth McMillan, who devised the ballet to the Prokofiev score, and designer Nicholas Georgiadis, whose sets and costumes made it a blaze of medieval pageantry.

"Covent Garden," says the Times, "can have seen few more sumptuous spectacles in its entire history."

H.R.M. GIVES $8 MILLION TO UNIVERSITY

VANCOUVER (CP)—Timber magnate H. R. MacMillan has contributed $8,000,000 to stimulate graduate and religious studies at the University of British Columbia, it was announced today.

A total of $3,000,000 will be used to make the university library equal to the best in Canada, an announcement said. An additional $3,500,000 goes for post graduate fellowships.

UBC said today that this money will earn about $650,000 in interest before its use, making a contribution to university development of about $6,850,000.

A further $1,000,000 goes to Union College of the United Church of Canada, and a similar amount to the Anglican Theological College. Both are independent of UBC but are located on the campus.

Two Saanich Sewer Plants Opposed by Health Board

Two proposed sewage treatment plants for Saanich development were opposed Tuesday by Saanich member Coun. Doug Crosby.

The first would handle effluent from a hotel proposed by the Isherwood family at Royal Oak, making use of soil absorption and evaporation. The other would double capacity of a plant emptying treated effluent into Colquitz River.

Both applications are before the provincial pollution control board and Metro Health was asked for a recommendation.

School district 64 representative Dr. T. L. Jansch said of the Royal Oak proposal:

"I doubt whether this is a safe procedure and as long as there is doubt I don't think this board should approve."

ONE EXCEPTION

He moved that further opposition to the application should be given and was supported by the rest of the board, excepting Coun. Doug Crosby.

It was recommended the pollution control board consider alternative means of sewage disposal.

Essence of the Isherwood plan is to treat sewage in a private plant and run it into reservoirs on acreage owned by the developers, from which it would seep into grassland and serve as fertilizer, or evaporate in dry months.

Soil tests have shown poor percolation not permitting an ortho-drain tile and filter bed dispersal system.

STUDENTS FOREIGN

More than 21,000 foreign students from 119 nations are studying in the Soviet Union, most of them taking engineering.

He moved that further opposition to the application should be Consultants for the developers say the plan is safe and practical, but health officer Dr. J. M. Whitebread suggested a major objection from the health viewpoint is the proximity to Patricia Bay Highway (1,700 feet) and a domestic water reservoir near Royal Oak Avenue.

OTHER PLAN

The other project would be to open up about 150 homesites in Northridge subdivision, adding another 35,000 gallons of effluent daily to Colquitz River.

Dr. Whitebread said this doubling of flow to 70,000 gallons into already polluted Colquitz is preferable to the alternative septic tanks.

Ad. Lily Wilson moved the board restate its policy opposing pollution of inland waters by any means. She was supported fully.

'Liberal Achievements Played Down'

British Columbia Liberal leader Ray Perrault said Tuesday newspapers with Conservative biases are minimizing the accomplishments of the federal government.

He also suggested that Premier Bennett had a secret meeting with federal MPs in which they agreed to block any possible development of a private bank being established in the province until "to liberate the people from the bonds which restrict the full development of their personality."

War Amputees Get Pension Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — An increase in pensions for 105 Canadian war amputees and their families was announced Tuesday by T. D. Anderson, chairman of the Canadian Pension Commission.

He reviewed federal bills since the Liberals came into office, calling it the most efficient legislative period in the history of minority governments.

In dealing with the B.C. government, Mr. Perrault said a provincial Hansard and a daily question period had been "banned by Bennett."

By Arthur Mayse

We must wait a while longer before we learn from British Columbia's slim grey number-one park ranger whether a mining town will presently blossom in already-nibbled Strathcona.

Speculation insists that such a town is on the planning boards, and my own guess is that it will not only materialize but be flourishing and perhaps expanding long after the Strathcona ores are stripped from what were once the people's acres.

I do not propose to dwell on the Strathcona passage with which Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kierman concluded his Tuesday reply to the budget speech.

Two points raised by Mr. Kierman are, however, puzzling me.

If houses that stand in the route of a planned highway can be expropriated by government, why could not the same policy be applied to a scattering of miners' claims allowed by deed of a shortsighted government 50 years ago?

And how—in fact, how in all hedges do we, as parksmen Kierman suggests, "preserve the aesthetics" of Strathcona now?

This, of course, is balderdash, although Strathcona's mountains will still stand, and perhaps some of her first-growth timber; and a Buttle Lake slightly polluted by mine tailings will continue to sparkle in the sun.

Except for Dewdney NDP Dave Barrett's bitter cross-floor charge that: "You've given away 50 per cent of Strathcona Park, Mr. Minister!" Mr. Kierman's words brought scant dissent.

That may come when the House at a later point debates the bill proposing a parks act, which we have sorely lacked for many a year.

Still, fair is fair, and to this brother of the trees must go credit for our most graceful flourish to date. This was directed toward Highways Minister Gaglardi.

Declared smiling Ken Kierman after announcing the infeasibility of a Garibaldi-Lillooet River road link:

"I would not say it's impossible for our little Roman to build a road there . . . If you gave him the money, by golly, he'd build a road to the moon!"

And, I don't doubt, scatter "Sorry for the inconvenience" signs along the way.

Deputy Speaker William Speer for Cariboo shared the afternoon with the minister, and in between were sandwiched two excellent country members from each side of the House.

One was NDP Frank Calder, plugging doggedly for his enormous wilderness riding of Atlin.

Salmon Arm Socred Willis Jeffcoat was the other. Mr. Jeffcoat proposed a pay-by-the-week fishing licence for out-of-province anglers—to my mind the most sensible suggestion of the day.

Charmer of the legislative evening was Waldo Skillings, SC for Victoria, who, before laughter prompted a correction to Swartz Bay, urged construction of a four-lane highway between Victoria and Tsawwassen.

A feat which would tax even the little Roman, by golly!

Unfair Jailing Concern Forced Rivard Moves'

OTTAWA (CP)—André Letendre, executive assistant to Justice Minister Favreau, told the Dorion judicial inquiry today he sought information in the Rivard narcotics case because he didn't want Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to get up in the Commons and say a man had been imprisoned unjustly.

He said that at that time—last August—a great many charges were being made that the justice department was keeping innocent persons in prison.

Counsel Yves Fortier asked why Mr. Letendre wasn't put on his guard when told that Lucien Rivard had previously been involved in the narcotics traffic.

Mr. Letendre just shrugged.

Mr. Fortier is counsel for Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne who has testified he was offered a $20,000 bribe July 14 to agree to bail for Rivard, wanted in the U.S. on narcotics conspiracy charges. Mr. Lamontagne was—and still is—acting for the U.S. government in the Rivard affair.

UNDER PRESSURE

Mr. Lamontagne has testified that he was put under Liberal political pressure to agree to bail for Rivard.

He went to the RCMP Aug. 11 with his allegations after receiving telephone calls about the Rivard case from Mr. Letendre, Liberal MP Guy Lehouer and Guy Lord, then special assistant to Mr. Favreau.

Mr. Letendre said he learned from Mr. Lamontagne that Rivard was involved in an international narcotics network.

Ross Drouin, Conservative party counsel, quoted Mr. Letendre's statement to the RCMP Aug. 19 that he (Letendre) didn't think his questioning that day by the RCMP concerned a serious matter.

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion asked whether Mr. Letendre didn't think it was serious when the RCMP started questioning the executive assistant to a cabinet minister.

Mr. Letendre said he had been told by Mr. Favreau that he would be questioned by the RCMP but the minister hadn't told him why.

Mr. Letendre said he was uneasy because he thought he might have lost a secret document or said something he shouldn't have. When the matter turned out to be his tele-

U.S., Soviet Both Outwitted?

CHINA TIGER GETTING FOXY

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—The impression is growing in informed British quarters that China, with the help of North Viet Nam, may have outwitted the untried leaders of both the Soviet Union and the United States.

The prospects may be exactly what Peking ordered: A shattering of hope for any friendly East-West conference that may have been in the making and a break-up in any budding friendship that could have developed between the two strangers—Alexei Kosygin of the Soviet Union and Lyndon Johnson of the United States.

Now, suddenly, the Vietnamese war has enveloped both leaders in images perhaps not of their own choosing. Each must show his people at home he is fearless. They cannot withdraw from the increasing rigidity of their predicaments without loss of face.

It now is widely accepted in Western diplomatic quarters the timing of the Viet Cong attack against an American air base at Pleiku in South Viet Nam was deliberate. It coincided with the first visit of Kosygin in Hanoi, a city which his predecessor had tended to ignore.

Western diplomats suggest Kosygin was no more aware of plans for that attack than were the American airmen who were pinned by gun-fire at Pleiku.

All-Out China-U.S. War Could Explode: Pearson

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Viet Nam could explode into a "full scale far eastern Chinese-American war," Prime Minister Pearson warned here today in an address to the Ottawa Canadian Club.

The situation is full of danger and Canada is directly interested in it. We have naturally expressed our concern to our neighbor," Mr. Pearson said.

It is a "confused and dangerous" situation, he said.

The best solution, of course, would be to end foreign intervention and bring about a unified, independent, neutral Viet Nam. But what chance has a unified Viet Nam of becoming anything but a Communist Viet Nam, not through popular decision but by Chinese imposition?" he asked.

This is the basic problem that must be set beside the obvious danger that retaliation may escalate into war.

"Let us not oversimplify the problem, especially to justify easy criticism of United States policy," he cautioned.

The government of India on Monday had proposed an immediate suspension of all provocative action in South Viet Nam as well as North Viet Nam by "all sides," Mr. Pearson noted.

"This is an appeal which I can heartily support, but I add it in its entirety," he said.

The Indian government also proposes negotiations through a Geneva-type conference to seek a peaceful and enduring solution, he pointed out.

Hostels Studied For Delinquents

The provincial probation service is studying ways of filling a "wide gap" between returning juvenile delinquents to bad home environments or sending them to prison.

Annual report of the corrections branch tabled in the legislature Tuesday night expressed concern with the large number of juveniles being transferred from family and children's court to magistrate's court and winding up in prison for lack of any alternative.

Under study are the possibilities of a juvenile "hostel" weekend training program or allowing the older juveniles to live on their own under supervision.

The report pointed out that juveniles in the 14 to 17-year-old group are almost impossible to place in foster homes and frequently can't be returned to their own homes because that is the prime source of their behavior problems.

ADULT COURT

The result is that the courts, reluctant to send them to overcrowded training schools, transfer the cases to adult court in the belief they would have better training opportunities in young adult institutions.

The trouble is the opportunities for criminal training are greater, too, when the juveniles are mingled with older and more hardened youths, the report indicated.

"Adequate treatment and training facilities for juveniles remain an imperative need if we are to stop the flow at a later date into our adult institutions," the report warns.

"There is at present a wide unfilled gap between probation and the training school. The need for more diversified facilities to allow youths to remain in the community under proper supervision and control is urgent."

INNOVATIONS

The branch is studying three innovations in other areas to see if they could be used in B.C. to fill the gap:

Establishment of a probation service hostel where the youths could live while continuing their education or jobs;

A weekend training program, similar to the character development "Outward Bound" program in England, which would allow the youths to live

QORs Keeping Sharp For Call to Cyprus

Standing by for an expected transfer to Cyprus next month, officers and men of the First Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada have stepped up their training program.

Military exercises are in full swing around the barracks and the Bay Street Armoury is being used as an auxiliary training centre.

If the federal government decides to move the battalion to Cyprus in March, about 750 trained personnel will be involved and only a small group of officers and men will be left in Victoria.

"If we don't go to Cyprus, we shall continue to train for service anywhere in the world," a spokesman said. "That is, we shall still be on a stand-by basis."

BAND AT ARMORY

To make more room for military exercises at Work Point Barracks, the battalion's 32-piece band of drums and bugles is now in training at the Bay Street Armoury.

And the armory's swimming pool is being used for practice in swimming and life-saving.

The battalion has been stationed at Work Point Barracks since October, 1963, when the First Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry was transferred to Fort Macleod, West Germany.

Command of the battalion was taken over Jan. 22 by Lt.-Col. C. L. Kirby from Ottawa. He said he would demand "nothing but the best" for his soldiers in their stand-by role for United Nations' peace-keeping duties abroad.

Maj.-Gen. J. M. Rockingham, commanding officer Western Command, said:

"There is every probability and possibility, if the government continues its peace-keeping duties, this battalion will go to Cyprus."

Road Asked To Isolated Beach Area

Council Tuesday decided to seek an interview with Deputy Recreation Minister David Turner.

The property is wedged between an Indian reserve and a small private holding about a mile from Telegraph Road which runs from Patricia Bay Highway to a concession and go-kart track on the beach.

It totals 63 acres and includes 2,100 feet of waterfrontage.

At present the only access is on foot along the beach from the end of Telegraph Road.

Com. Ray Lamont urged construction of a "marine drive" from the foot of Telegraph Road to the park—about 2,900 feet.

"Something should be done immediately to construct an access," he said. "Cars jam the bottom of Telegraph Road at Otter Point."

He said a road along the beach was gazetted long ago.

"It's about time something was done to build it," he said.

The Banana Slips Into History

The last of three Royal Canadian Navy air-sea rescue helicopters on the west coast is leaving today.

Retired after more than 13 years' service, the Piasecky HUP-3, better known as the "flying banana," will be preserved for posterity at the War Museum in Ottawa.

He said a road along the beach was gazetted long ago.

"It's about time something was done to build it," he said.

Due to economy measures, no replacement has as yet been named for the "Hup."

The helicopters served gallantly. George Medals were awarded two crew members and there were numerous commendations.

The "banana" carried a crew of two. It could accommodate four passengers. Its range was about 100 miles.

A. Victoria Volunteer Rifles: Q. In the National Hockey League, will you please explain what constitutes a shot on goal? C.A.C.

A. Any puck which would normally go into the net unless its progress is impeded by the goalie. This includes deflections and attempts to "ice" the puck.

PORT HARDY BUS RUN STARTS SUNDAY

'Rugged, Awesome, Beautiful'

By JIM BUME

The first stage of "The Route of the Haidas" will be opened Sunday via Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

At 8:20 that morning the first bus link between Victoria and Port Hardy 365 bus-miles north of here will start its inaugural run.

In 1966 the first B.C. Government Ferry will start operations between the northern Vancouver Island port and Prince Rupert providing tourists with the second and final link in the great circle route.

"It's terrific," was the reaction of M. E. Hepple, assistant commissioner of the Vancouver Island Tourist Bureau. "Once the ferry is in operation the joint bus-ferry service will revolutionize the entire Island."

Mr. Hepple said that great interest in the Port Hardy-Prince Rupert ferry run was already being expressed in the United States.

FLOCK HERE

"When they hear that they can make the round trip via Victoria, Campbell River, Prince Rupert and the Alaska Highway along established bus routes they will flock here in the hundreds," he added.

Ron Worley, assistant manager of B.C. Ferries, is also happy.

"I hope that there is sufficient interest in the service now, because operating the route will give the line a year's experience and the time to figure out how they can serve the ferry when it gets in operation in May, 1966," he said.

The first bus will leave Victoria at 8:20 Sunday morning and, with one change at Campbell River, arrive in Port Hardy at 9:45 p.m. the same day.

General manager of Coach Lines, C. Conway Parrott, said the attorney-general's department has asked RCMP here to investigate charges a Burnaby hotel salesman was improperly arrested on a speeding charge.

Patrick Gordon Shea of Burnaby said in a letter to Attorney-General Robert Bonner that his arrest was a classic example of "Gestapo" tactics.

He said he had been stopped for speeding last May near Revelstoke, but that officers issued no tickets. They told him he would receive a ticket in a few weeks.

He didn't hear anything further until an RCMP officer arrested him in his Burnaby office six months later.

TO JAIL

Mr. Shea said he was taken to jail, despite his offer to appear "voluntarily immediately after my interview with a client."

His objections, he says, are not to being fined for speeding, but to the manner in which he was arrested.

He said RCMP who questioned him near Revelstoke took his home and business addresses and could have served him with a summons anytime.

The Criminal Code says police can obtain warrants for arrest only by showing that an accused person has ignored summons or it appears an accused is evading police who want to serve a summons.

Since he didn't get a summons in the first place, Mr. Shea speculates police, when they applied to a magistrate for the arrest warrant, claimed he had been evading service.

After his arrest in his office, Mr. Shea said he was convicted of speeding and fined $50 at Revelstoke.

COST $21.90

The 12 hour, 25 minute trip from Victoria to the northern terminal will cost the traveller $21.90.

Mr. Cunningham said the department stores measure their U.S. dollar intake each year against the previous year.

They know how vast this income from the U.S. can be and they recognize it as a priming device which affects business generally in the area. It releases a greater purchasing power into the community and its loss could have a downward spiraling effect on the whole community."

Mr. Cunningham pointed out that the measure would not directly affect the amount of money spent here by U.S. tourists for food, liquor or accommodation.

He added that operating over logging roads is nothing new for the 37-year-old bus company.

EAST TO WEST

"In 1960 Coach Lines began service from Campbell River to Gold River over logging roads, thus opening the Island from east to west," he said.

New $18,000 air-side coaches will be operated over the route with points of call Vernon Camp, Woss, Nimpkish, Kokish, Beaver Cove and Port McNeill. Mr. Parrott said Coal Harbor would also be included by an auxiliary route if residents requested service and backed the request up by use.

Regular meal and rest stops have been organized along the route for the convenience of travellers.

The service will also tie-in with ferry services to Vancouver with the one-way through fare from Port Hardy to the mainland $18.90.

A sailor pleaded guilty this morning in city court to car theft, driving while disqualified and careless driving.

James F. McCready, HMCS Antigonish, will be sentenced Feb. 18.

Constable Russell Redmond said he stopped McCready driving on Douglas Street at 11 p.m. Tuesday. He found that the ignition wires on the car were crossed to start the engine.

Further investigation revealed the car had been stolen off a lot the night before.

Magistrate William Ostler today refused to let a hit-and-run driver retain his licence for business purposes.

He said persons who do not remain at the scene of an accident "are not going to have licences for their work."

He made the comment in sentencing Richard Harwood, 1112 Empress. Harwood was fined $125.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birrell said Harwood hit a parked car on Bay Street near Prior shortly after midnight Tuesday.

Harwood was arrested five hours later at his home. He said he thought his car had only hit the bumper of the parked vehicle.

John Cannon, 1051 Hyacinth, was sent to jail for seven days Tuesday for hit-and-run driving. The young man drove into a car on Lansdowne Road early Sunday and then drove away.

Magistrate William Ostler said he had no intention of being harsh in sentencing Cannon but he could not let him off with a fine since he is at present on bond for a previous offence.

JONES, HANKINSON CASES TO BE APPEALED BY GOV'T

31 Feared Dead In Billet Raid

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist Viet Cong terrorists destroyed a U.S. army billet tonight in Qui Nhon, 275 miles northeast of Saigon.

It was feared as many as 31 Americans were killed.

'Unfair Jailing Concern Forced Rivard Moves'

OTTAWA (CP)—André Letendre, executive assistant to Justice Minister Favreau, told the Dorion judicial inquiry today he sought information in the Rivard narcotics case because he didn't want Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to get up in the Commons and say a man had been imprisoned unjustly.

He said that at that time—last August—a great many charges were being made that the justice department was keeping innocent persons in prison.

Counsel Yves Fortier asked why Mr. Letendre wasn't put on his guard when told that Lucien Rivard had previously been involved in the narcotics traffic.

Mr. Letendre just shrugged.

Mr. Fortier is counsel for Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne who has testified he was offered a $20,000 bribe July 14 to agree to bail for Rivard, wanted in the U.S. on narcotics conspiracy charges. Mr. Lamontagne was—and still is—acting for the U.S. government in the Rivard affair.

The attack came at Qui Nhon came at 8 p.m. A spokesman said the mangled bodies of two Viet Cong were found nearby with demolition equipment. They apparently were killed by their own bombs.

The attacks came after the "National Liberation Front," the political arm of the Viet Cong, called for stepped up attacks on Americans to offset the retaliatory bombing raids on the North Viet Nam.

Mr. Letendre has testified that he was put under Liberal political pressure to agree to bail for Rivard.

He went to the RCMP Aug. 11 with his allegations after receiving telephone calls about the Rivard case from Mr. Letendre, Liberal MP Guy Rouleau and Guy Lord; then special assistant to Mr. Favreau.

There was speculation in diplomatic quarters that U.S. retaliatory action would be taken. Belief of this was based on the fact that the latest incident appeared from first reports to have taken a greater toll of lives than the attack on Plei Me last Saturday.

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion asked whether Mr. Letendre didn't think it was serious when the RCMP started questioning

OTTAWA (CP)—Guy Masson, self-styled Liberal organizer, was recalled before the Dorion inquiry today and confronted with evidence of telephone calls of which he had denied any knowledge in previous testimony.

"I don't doubt, scatter 'Sorry for the inconvenience' signs along the way."

All-Out China-U.S. War Could Explode: Pearson

FINAL ★★ BULLETINS

Man Crushed to Death

A man was crushed to death this afternoon under his 15-ton caterpillar at a logging operation off Kangaroo Road about two miles from Rocky Point Road.

The accident occurred about 1 p.m. The man's identity was not known.

A Langford fire department ambulance which attended at the scene was forced to return when its gasoline tank was ripped on the rough logging road leading to the scene.

Big Drug Cache Seized In Hong Kong

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Police announced seizure of about 2.6 tons of opium and 386 pounds of morphine at a chicken farm here. A police spokesman said today more drugs might be in bundles of bamboo at the farm. He said the seizure was worth about 4,000,000 Hong Kong dollars ($760,000 Canadian).

Vancouver Stocks Closing Prices

VANCOUVER—Closing sales: Galaxy 1,000 at .94, Dundee 1,000 at .68, Dolly Varden 1,000 at .72, Hurley River 2,000 at .19, Torwest 1,300 at $1.02, Texinont 1,400 at $1.27, Western Mines 300 at $4.90, Mt. Washington-Copper 1,000 at .99, Can. Am. Pete 3,000 at .21, Silver Standard 500 at $1.25.

TALKS URGED BY DE GAULLE

PARIS (AP)—President de Gaulle today sounded a new call for negotiations to neutralize Viet Nam and the rest of Southeast Asia.

De Gaulle's appeal for talks declared that the strife cannot be settled by weapons. He said there must rather be negotiations with the aim of cutting off all foreign influence. De Gaulle's statement did not single out the United States or any other country.

"No," replied the burly Masson. He just couldn't remember those calls.

Boats Seek Fiji Hurricane Survivors

SUVA, Fiji (Reuters)—New Zealand Air Force barges joined dozens of small boats today in a mass rescue of Fijian villagers marooned in floods after a devastating hurricane.

At least 23 persons are believed to have been drowned in the last three days.

Britannia Eviction Order Refused

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Giant Anaconda Mining Company failed today in its bid to have the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) evicted from its property at Britannia, B.C.

Judge A. H. J. Swencky in county court, dismissed an application for an eviction order.

Thet Dorion enquiry c'd go from muck-rakin' t' esteem-shovellin'.

I'd think th' Americans w'd do better in Viet Nam. They've had a lot of experience in this North versus South battlin'.

Guess openin' night at th' Playhouse w'll be a dry run.

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Viet Nam could explode into a "full scale far eastern Chinese-American war," Prime Minister Pearson warned here today in an address to the Ottawa Canadian Club.

The situation is full of danger and Canada is directly interested in it. We have naturally expressed our concern to our neighbor," Mr. Pearson said.

It is a "confused and dangerous" situation, he said.

The best solution, of course, would be to end foreign intervention and bring about a unified, independent, neutral Viet Nam. But what chance has a unified Viet Nam of becoming anything but a Communist Viet Nam, not through popular decision but by Chinese imposition?" he asked.

This is the basic problem that must be set beside the obvious danger that retaliation may escalate into war.

"Let us not oversimplify the problem, especially to justify easy criticism of United States policy," he cautioned.

The government of India on Monday had proposed an immediate suspension of all provocative action in South Viet Nam as well as North Viet Nam by "all sides," Mr. Pearson said.

"This is an appeal which I can heartily support, but I add only in its entirety," he said.

The Indian government also proposes negotiations through a Geneva-type conference to study a peaceful and enduring solution, he pointed out.

U.K. Sends Troops

LONDON (UPI)—Britain is sending at least two more warships and about 1,000 troops to join the forces defending Malaysia against Indonesian harassment, defence sources said today.

Crown Prosecutor Takes Action

Crown prosecutor Lloyd G. McKenzie, QC, today said he will take the G. E. P. Jones and George Hankinson cases back to court.

He said he plans to file notice of appeal in the Jones case before the time runs out Feb. 17 and has not made up his mind which of several courses available he will take in reviving the Hankinson case.

Mr. Jones, suspended provincial purchasing commission chairman, was acquitted Jan. 15 of charges of accepting benefits. Mr. Hankinson's preliminary hearing on charges of giving the benefits ended in a dismissal.

The crown is not satisfied to let matters rest as they are and it is particularly dissatisfied with the legal rulings relating to the status of Jones," Mr. McKenzie said after reviewing the situation this morning with officials of the attorney-general's department.

Mr. Jones was found not to be a government official within the criminal code definition under which the charges were laid.

Mr. McKenzie said he had to appeal the Jones case to "preserve what rights the crown may have." But in the Hankinson case, he can make several applications aimed at ordering a trial as well as a straight appeal from the magistrate's decision that the Jones' decision washed out any need for ordering a trial.

The crown is not satisfied to let matters rest as they are and it is particularly dissatisfied with the legal rulings relating to the status of Jones," Mr. McKenzie said after reviewing the situation this morning with officials of the attorney-general's department.

the executive assistant to a cabinet minister.

Mr. Letendre said he had been told by Mr. Favreau that he would be questioned by the RCMP but the minister hadn't told him why.

Mr. Letendre said he was uneasy because he thought he might have lost a secret document or said something he shouldn't have. When the minister turned out to be his telephone call to Mr. Lamontagne, he had relaxed.

Mr. Drouin said Mr. Letendre must have known how serious the matter was. He had described Mr. Favreau as being "pale and wan" and Mr. Lord had told him the Rivard case involved narcotics and that it would be dangerous to release Rivard on bail.

Mr. Letendre said later he wasn't surprised that Mr. Rouleau had approached him and Mr. Lord about the Rivard case. Requests were received every day from MPs concerning justice department cases.

Andre Villeneuve, counsel for Mr. Rouleau, asked whether MPs take steps in criminal cases.

CHARGES DELAYED

Mr. Letendre said yes. He recalled that Mr. Favreau had delayed laying charges in one case at the request of Erik Nielsen (PC-Yukon) so that the latter would have time to make representations first.

Mr. Drouin described this cross-examination as "redundant."

SEE "POLITICAL PRESSURE"

The witness said there was political pressure on the government as well as arising from the dismissal from the navy of Gordon Knott because of mistaken identity by the RCMP security branch.

He told Mr. Lamontagne that Mr. Favreau's office had received representations on behalf of Rivard.

Mr. Letendre quoted Mr. Lamontagne as saying that Robert Kennedy, then U.S. attorney-general, was following the narcotics closely and that he knew Mr. Favreau would not interfere with the judge hearing Rivard's extradition case.

The witness said Mr. Favreau met Bob Kennedy in Toronto in April.

"We called him Bob like we called the president Jack," Mr. Letendre said.

Mr. Letendre testified that in a telephone conversation with Mr. Lamontagne the Montreal lawyer told him Mr. Favreau was not the kind of person to interfere in matters which did not concern him.

He (Mr. Letendre) told Mr. Lamontagne of a meeting between Mr. Favreau and the U.S. attorney-general last April and said the two ministers would co-operate on matters of common interest.

He also had told Mr. Lamontagne he would be visiting Washington after the Atlantic City convention of the Democratic party.

Arrests had been made, for example, in Boston, Marseilles and the Far East.

Mr. Letendre also gave testimony to the effect that Rivard had been involved previously in the narcotics traffic but had stayed away from it for three years.

He said Liberal MP Guy Rouleau told him Mrs. Rivard had

Algae Study Grant Sought For District

A federal research grant to University of Victoria to help battle lake algae infestation will be sought by Metro Health Board, delegates agreed Tuesday.

Mr. Letendre said Mr. Rouleau spoke to him about the Rivard case last Aug. 11.

He quoted Mr. Rouleau as saying he wanted to discuss the possibility of bail for Rivard but needed information on the case first.

Mr. Letendre said Mr. Rouleau mentioned Rivard had been of service to Raymond Rouleau in electoral campaigns.

He said he then spoke about the matter to Mr. Lord who had also been approached by Mr. Rouleau. It was at this point that Mr. Lord had told him of Rivard's foreign bank accounts and of the danger that Rivard would escape if granted bail.

Mr. Letendre said he phoned Mr. Lamontagne because at that time there were charges of persons being illegally detained.

RESEARCH GRANTS

Dr. Whitbread said special research grants for matters affecting public health are available from the federal government.

The research study was recommended in a report made by Metro Health chairman R. Gordon Lee, who pointed out that dangerous algae growth may extend to other fresh-water bodies in the area.

Dr. Austin would carry out an extensive study of this blue green algae throughout this area," the report said. Dr. Austin and the director of provincial laboratories have personally agreed to the study.

Algae may be eliminated temporarily by use of copper sulphate poison, harmful to other life.

A better way to tackle the problem is to pin down its cause through research, Reeve Lee's report indicated.

Studies so far have indicated that fertilized material from adjoining land have a bearing on the problem, as it is two years since the land was fertilized.

Dr. Austin has a water sampling system set up to chart a growth pattern in Langford Lake.

He also had told Mr. Lamontagne he would be visiting Washington after the Atlantic City convention of the Democratic party.

Arrests had been made, for example, in Boston, Marseilles and the Far East.

Mr. Letendre also gave testimony to the effect that Rivard had been involved previously in the narcotics traffic but had stayed away from it for three years.
